Holsteins dominate Lampeter dairy show

LAMPETER - The dairy judging at the West Lampeter Community Fair on Thursday was mainly dominated by Holsteins. Only two other breeds were entered - Guernsey and Ayrshire - with six animals in the Guernsey breed and one animal in the Ayrshire.

In Holstein competition, Tom Denlinger, Gap, took the grand champion honors. His animal was a three-year-old who had won reserve champion honors just the week before at the Solanco Fair.

Judge Ray Seidel, Kutztown, explained that he chose the animal on her general dairy appearance, and that her udder was her outstanding characteristic.

"She was the most balanced animal of the show," said Seidel, "and her udder was extremely well balanced. She was firmer in the four attachment and was higher and wider in the rear than the reserve champion."

The reserve champion belonged to the Mowery Frey family, Beaver Valley Pike, Lancaster.

Denlinger's champion was his 4-H calf that he has raised. This was the first time he had taken any awards at West Lampeter, so he was pleased with the outcome.

The three-year-old's record is 17,000 pounds of milk with 3.6 per cent butterfat. She's also classified 86.

Denlinger, who is 20 years old, has been showing for about five years now. He has no set plans to take the animal to the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, but he knows for certain that she's done showing in county fairs for the season. Besides grand champion, she was also senior champion and best udder of the show.

The junior champion was a junior heifer calf owned by Rhonda Balmer, 1551 Mentzer Road, Lampeter. Although she's been showing for three years now, this was Rhonda's first title. Rhonda, who is 12 years old, lives on the neighboring farm to the fair grounds and walked her calf to the show last year. This year she brought her animal in a truck just like everybody else, since the corn had not been harvested.

Reserve junior champion also went to Tom Denlinger.

Ivitational Holstein sale averages $2897

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG - Forty-two head of top Holsteins were sold in the Pennsylvania Invitational All-American Holstein Sale on Thursday night for an average of $2897 per animal.

William C. Nichol, excutive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, State College, commented:

"The sale this year was a strong one all the way through . . . the range of our cattle would show this in the prices paid. We had cows with lots of potential . . . mostly younger cows, 3 and 4 year olds . . . a really milky group of cattle with strong pedigrees."

Topping the sale was "Mun-Cre Elevation Misty," a 2½ year old daughter of Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation. Consigned by Lester M. Poust of Muncy, she sold for $6000 to James R. Hunter and Lester M. Poust of Muncy. Poust retained half interest in the cow, which has a projected DHIA record of 17,145 pounds of milk and 843 of fat in 305 days. She freshened for the first time on June 7 of this year.

The sale featured 11 Elevation daughters, five each from Kingpin, Apollo Ivanhoe and Astronaut; four by Ivanhoe Star, three from Bootmaker, and two each from Fond Matt, Gay Ideal, and R Maple.

Buyers represented Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Georgia, Idaho, Maryland, Kentucky, Virginia, Ohio and New Jersey.

Marlu Farms of Lincroft, N.J. consigned a 3½ year old daughter of Elevation which sold for $4950 to S and H Acres of Williamsburg. Her as yet incompleted first lactation reads 8060 of milk and 270 of fat. She freshened on March 1.

Earl Stauffer and Associates of Ephrata paid $4200 for a 5 year old daughter of Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe, consigned by James and Susan Howes of Warriors Mark. Her most Pennsylvania's new dairy princess is Peggy Staub, 19-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Staub, Newville. The former Cumberland County Dairy Princess, Miss Staub was crowned late Wednesday night during a recognition banquet which featured all 40 contestants and 10 of the 19 previous Pennsylvania Dairy Princesses. Held in the ballroom of the Penn-Harris Motor Inn, the event was attended by several hundred guests. First runner-up in the pageant was Corinne Dunlap, 18, from Indiana County. Placing third was Wanda Sue Herman, 18-year old dairy princess from Bradford County.

Dairy show spectacular held in Harrisburg

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG - A total of 1768 dairy animals, representing six breeds, filled the barns and exhibit halls of the Farm Show complex, here, this week. The occasion was the 13th annual Pennsylvania All-America, one of the biggest dairy shows in the country.

The week-long affair included the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, coverage of which begins on pages 60-61 and beyond. Results of four of the six breed shows for the All-American are also contained within these 120 pages. The Ayrshire and Holstein shows, which were completed on Friday, will be featured in next week's issue.

Twenty-two states plus two Canadian provinces were represented in the big event, which attracted the finest cows, heifers, and calves from as far west as Nebraska and as far south as South Carolina.

By breeds there were 207 Ayrshires entered, 311 Brown Swiss, 226 Guernseys, 749 Holsteins, 159 Jerseys, and 116 Milking Shorthorns.

Participants and visitors to the Farm Show complex this week were in full agreement that there were a lot of high quality cows represented in the shows. With colorful banners suspended from above, and countless attractive displays and booths at nearly every corner, visitors were treated with more than an eyeful for every day the All-American was in town.

Aside from the cattle shows, there were also related events going on. Two boys from Solanco High School checked in with the highest honors in the dairy judging forum for 4-H and

EPHRATA - Last week was Tony Eberly's week to shine at the Ephrata Fair. The 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Eberly, Denver R2, Tony had the grand champion steer of the 4-H and FFA steer show on Thursday evening, and two days prior to that he and his brother had the grand champion market hog. To add the finishing touches to his success, Tony also had the reserve champion lightweight FFA steer.

Tony's grand champion steer was a Simmental-Hereford cross. "Simon" (Tony tried to choose a name as close to the word "Simmental" as possible) weighed in at 1230 pounds and was Tony's first big win in beef, although he's been showing for four years. Last year he took third.

Tony's FFA steer was a Charolais-Angus-Limousine cross, and while he really had worked with the animal, he hadn't expected to go quite as far with it as he did.

"The 4-H steer is a more modern type steer than the FFA," Tony commented, referring to the Simmental-Hereford's bigger size, muscling, and meat content. Plus, the grand champion was a better calf to start with - it was trimmer that the FFA steer.

Tony is planning to keep the 4-H grand champion to go onto bigger and better contests. One major competition he is looking forward to is the Keystone Exposition in Harrisburg beginning in November. Then, of course, there is the Farm Show in January.

Asked which animals he prefers - swine or beef - Tony replied, "It depends. For pets, I like steers, and for show I like hogs." Pigs take less time overall to prepare for a show, although Tony feels "its worth it in the end when you work really hard" on the grooming and care of a steer.

His choice of animal to go with in the future is the swine.

"Right now I'd like to have a farrowing operation," he commented. For the rest of the season, however, he is going to have his hands full with working on his two champions.

YOU ALWAYS HAVE A MARKET WITH PRODUCERS PRIDE

PRODUCERS PRIDE

Producers Pride is a co-operative that was begun by egg producers and is controlled by egg producers. It's an organization that works exclusively for its producer members.

When you join Producers Pride, you become part owner of the business. And since we're not a giant co-op, your voice as an owner is important.

We're small—fewer than 200 producers—but we have the volume to service a growing market. And our markets are growing, thanks to the dedicated efforts of a small hard-working and very capable staff.

We are your friends and neighbors in the egg business. We enjoy being independent, and we enjoy having a guaranteed market for our eggs.

We're looking for a few more good members. If you're looking for an organization like Producers Pride, just fill in the coupon and mail it.

NOTE Life on the farm columns are written for urban as well as rural readers They're meant to bring the joys, frustrations, sorrows, and rewards and importance of agriculture to all.

It was Sunday afternoon, usually the only part of a Sunday which a farm family can have to itself Outside, a rain storm was making a mess of fields and pastures This was the kind of day that wasn't good for much except staying inside — warm and dry

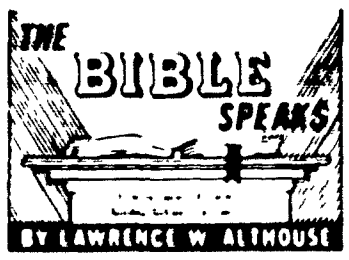
Then someone noticed a group of our heifers running wildly from one end of the pasture to the other Behind them were five horses, which had evidently been frightened by the storm and were now running through everything, including fences, because of their panic

We hurried outside, our feet splashing in puddles, and slipping in mud. The poor traction and visibility made it difficult to keep up with the animals, a few of which had by now found the broken section of fence, and were heading for the woods

The heifers and dry cows weren't too difficult to calm down. We found them at the far end of the woods, next to the bank of a stream. We were soaked from head to toe and splashed with mud up to our ears. The storm seemed to be subsiding, as we herded them home The heifers weren't the cause of our Sunday afternoon adventure The trouble makers were our neighbor's horses, which frequently went spooky during a storm and then started jumping fences Our two strands of electric fencing didn't help the situation any The shocks from it spooked them that much more, and a section of fence, well over 100 feet long, was flattened by them at the upper side of the pasture

Our work was far from over once the heifers were back home, and counted Two of us guarded the opening in the fence, while the other two headed for the tool shed to get the materials for fixing it Dark clouds loomed overhead, but no rain, and in the distance there was the rumble of thunder and brief flashes of lightning Broken posts were pulled out, and new posts were driven in, and the strands or wire were quickly put back into place. If we were lucky we could turn the electric fence controller back on and find both lights flashing Otherwise it would mean that something else needs fixing. Any short-circuits in the system will cause malfunctioning of the unit.

A nice, warm bath or shower is all we need yet By the time we were dry it was milking time



AUTONOMOUS SERVANTS

Lesson for September 26 1976

Background Scripture: Galatians 5 13 through 6 18
Devotional Reading I Peter 2 9-17

Several years ago I saw a cartoon depicting a class of young children with their teacher in what was obviously a "modern education" setting One of the children had raised his hand and was asking, "Teacher, do we have to do what we want to do again?"

Anyone who has worked intensively with children and youth know that "student autonomy" can be carried to absurd lengths. As in everything else in life, there is a need for balance, a balance between autonomy and direction, between flexibility and structure. We may come to realize (as the child in the cartoon) that sometimes there is nothing quite so confining and tiring as always doing just what we want to do.

Through Love Be Servants

Often it seems that the ideal situation is one in which we are so free of obligations and restraints that we can devote all our time and effort toward satisfying our own needs. In time, however, life seems to teach us that nothing is so imprisoning than being so completely "stuck on one's self."

No one has ever quite grasped the true meaning of freedom as Jesus did. He realized that freedom does not consist of exemption from serving others, but the attitude with which we perform that service. For example, he taught that if someone were to compel us to carry a burden for one mile, we ought instead to carry it for two miles. In so doing, Jesus, indicated you retain your freedom and the service you render is not under compulsion. In fact, you even signify to the oppressor that you are still in control of your own life. In "going the extra mile" you manifest your own autonomy.

Try it sometime and feel the difference: when someone is able to compel you to do something, "go the extra mile" and see how it feels inside. How much easier it is to serve someone else when we feel that we are still in control of our own lives! Thus, Paul wrote, "through love be servants of one another" (Galatians 5:13).

Sowing and Reaping

There is nothing more liberating than the freedom to choose to serve someone else in need. How good it feels to be freed of that compulsion to look after only ourselves. In helping others it is often ourselves who benefit most. All of us want to feel some sense of self-worth, yet often it is only in helping someone else that we can experience self-worth.

Both Jesus and Paul emphasized the relationship between "sowing" and "reaping." Thus, to the Galatians Paul says: "Do not be deceived; God is not mocked, for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap" (6:7). We best serve ourselves when we generously serve others.

Nor are we more free than when we give ourselves in service to others. Therefore, to "Bear one another's burdens" is no loss of independence, for there is no one more autonomous than the willing servant who gives himself or herself in the love of Jesus Christ.

TO BEWARE OF FROSTED CROPS

Fall is here and we can be getting a killing frost at any time Livestock producers should beware of the possibility of poisoning of animals from eating certain crops after frost I refer to the sudan-sorghum hybrids that are used for temporary pasture or green-chopping When these are frozen there is danger of the forming of prussic acid for the first 5 to 7 days after the frost; during this time the crop should not be consumed by any type of livestock. It may be made into hay or silage and allowed to cure or ferment for 30 days and then it will be safe to use. AFTER the crop has been frozen and died down in a dry form, then it may be consumed from the field. Also, there is danger of poisoning from new growth that may develop from the roots after a killing frost. Producers are urged to manage these crops very carefully this time of the year.

TO SEGREGATE LIVESTOCK

Newly purchased animals of any kind should not be put with acclimated animals because of the danger of various infections This time of the year some cattle feeders may be bold enough to buy replacement cattle, these should not eat or drink from the same bunks or troughs Purebred animals purchased for breeding purposes should be kept separate for at least 30 days, and after all tests have been negative Many producers are guilty of "buying trouble" when they bring in new animals You can't be too careful in preventing infections.

TO EVALUATE PESTICIDE PROGRAMS

Now that the growing season is about over, it is a good time to take a hard look at the success in controlling weeds, insects, and diseases on garden and field crops. Did the pesticides do the control job intended? If not, what was wrong and what should be done differently next year? If certain weeds were not controlled, or if insects damaged the crop, then some changes should be made for next year. If recommendations were correctly followed, and the pesticide still did not give good results, then the company or dealer should be notified. The proper use of pesticides should give good control of the pest; if this is not the case, then some effort should be made to get good results.

TO PREPARE CORN STORAGE

The corn crop is ripening fast and many farmers will be pressed to find sufficient storage space. We urge growers to try and put the corn in rodent-proof place rather than pile it on the barn floor. Old cribs and bins should be cleaned and sprayed with an insecticide such a Malathion in order to prevent infestation of the new grain. The old grain should be removed from the storage before the new grain is put in. If the premises are already heavily infested with rats and mice, then an eradication program should precede corn harvest. Corn prices continue to be favorable and good storage facilities will help keep the crop in good market condition.

GUERNSEY

The Kenneth Garber family, Willow Street R2, took nearly all the first place awards in the Guernsey class. Kenneth had the grand champion and son Gerald had the reserve grand champion Two years ago the Garbers also had the champion. Acknowledging that there was virtually no competition in their breed, Garber said, "We really wish more people would come with their Guernseys so we could have a better show."

Garber, who is a custom silo filler, gives all the credit for preparing the animals to his hired man, Jerry Harnish.

"I'm so busy right now that I couldn't enter if Jerry didn't help," he claims.

In total, the Garbers had first place in the junior yearling, senior yearling, two-year-old, five-year-old, and aged cow classes. Those were the only six classes judged. Joe Rohrer had the first place senior heifer calf.

There was one Ayrshire shown by JoAnne Findley.

Tom Denlinger, Gap, had the grand champion Holstein of the West Lampeter dairy judging contest. She was also best udder of the show, and it was this particular characteristic that helped her win the grand champion title.

Rhonda Balmer had the junior champion Holstein of the West Lampeter dairy judging contest. Her animal was a junior heifer calf.

Gerald Garber's animal was the reserve grand champion of the Guernsey breed at the West Lampeter dairy judging contest.

Barbecue a success

This is the fourth year now that the Young Farmers have had the barbeque, and it had the best turnout of the four years.

One of the crowd of 300 enjoying their meals explained why the barbeque was such a success this year.

"It's just delicious," she said. "We're coming out early next year to make sure we get some more."

EPHRATA — The Young Farmers Pork Barbecue on Tuesday evening of the Ephrata Fair was a sell out. Three hundred dinners were sold in two hours time rather than the allotted three hours.

Kenneth Hertzog, Ephrata R2, chairman of the fair was pleased with the turnout.

"It's our only money making event of the year," he said.

Crop Report

Rain was welcomed

HARRISBURG Heavy rains over most of the Commonwealth during the week ending Sept 20 kept farmers out of their fields but were welcomed in bringing most soil moisture levels to normal, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service

The best soaking rainfall in six weeks amounted to 1 5 to 2 5 inches throughout most of the Commonwealth More than three inches of rain were measured in Lancaster Only extreme northwestern counties and the Philadelphia area measured less than one inch

Soil moisture supplies are rated adequate by two-thirds of the Commonwealth's reporting districts and short by one-third Most short moisture reports came from southern counties

Farmers were limited to four days of fieldwork with activities including filling silos, making hay, fall plowing, sowing barley and picking apples

The weather slowed the tobacco harvest, but it is 80 per cent complete and still a week ahead of the 65 per cent done a year ago

Potato harvesting is reported as 52 per cent complete, ahead of the 46 per cent a year ago Quality and yields are above earlier expectations

Corn for grain is lagging about a week behind last year The crop is 12 percent mature with another two-thirds in the dent stage A year ago 27 per cent was mature

Fall plowing at 59 per cent complete is six percent ahead of last year Wheat seeding stands at 34 per cent, compared to 32 percent in 1975. Barley seeding progressed to 40 per cent, but was still five per cent short of a year ago

Pastures are providing an average amount of feed The third cutting of alfalfa hay is 78 percent complete and a fourth cutting 45 percent complete.

Berks Ag Center acclaimed

By Frederick E. Bubb
Information officer, SCS, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Have you ever called a government office, found out you had the wrong agency, and then called three or four numbers before you got the right office? Or have you had to drive from town to town to visit U.S. Department of Agriculture offices? This used to be the case in Berks County, Pennsylvania.

Recognizing the need for improved service to the agricultural community, Berks County officials looked for an opportunity to improve government assistance. About this time USDA began a program of encouraging housing all its agencies in a single building, called an agricultural service center. This concept appealed to the Berks County commissioners and a decision was made to build the first agricultural service center in Pennsylvania.

Agricultural agencies now operate with facilities never dreamed possible. Several sizes of conference and meeting rooms are available, including an auditorium which seats several hundred people. Equipment rooms, ample storage space, abundant parking, and even a lunchroom are extra facilities in the building.

Showing great foresight, the Berks County commissioners added several other uses to the building. Civil defense and county communications are in the basement. The lunchroom is also in the basement and provides a dual role as food support for the civil defense operation. The building contains all county storage and shop facilities. Craig Williamson, of the Pennsylvania Civil Defense Council, termed the building outstanding, attractive, and at the same time, functional.

The Berks County center houses the Cooperative Extension Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, and Soil Conservation Service, USDA. Other agencies in the center include the county conservation district, which operates the reception and information center, and an Intermediate Education Unit and County Weights and Measures Office.

County Commissioner Vernon K Shaffer, who also serves on the conservation district board, states, "I am pleased and proud to have been part of the team that helped make this agricultural center a reality. In this day of hunger in the world, the farmers of Berks County need all the help they can get."

The public reaction to the center has been good. Before the center, USDA agencies were located in three towns. SCS District Conservationist J. Norris Judy reports that more farmers are coming to the agency offices now. Berks County farmer Mark Wolfskill echoed this feeling. According to Wolfskill, "Farmers can now visit all the agencies under one roof, saving them time and gasoline along with the convenient and free parking. I think farmers will now participate in more programs because of the accessibility of visiting all these agencies under one roof."

The Berks County center is one of five agricultural service centers in Pennsylvania. Others are in operation in Erie, Lancaster, Dauphin, and Washington Counties. All are enthusiastically supported by farmers and agency personnel.

Erie County dairy farmer Calvin Henry commented, "Service centers are a definite advantage to farmers who use the services of a number of agencies. The common phone number and joint meeting room are a big help to farmers."

Another Erie County farmer, Burdette Sedler, added: "It is much easier to get your questions answered promptly." He noted that the modern facilities also benefit the agency personnel.

O. Bard Judy, SCS district conservationist in Washington, Pennsylvania, spoke for all the SCS district conservationists in Pennsylvania who operate in service centers: "We are finding that cooperation between the agencies increases greatly-we are working together more now than ever before."

Invitational Holstein

recently completed record totalled 18,344 of milk and 687 of fat. She is due to freshen in October to Glendell Arlinda Chief

Another high selling individual was "Shardale Kingpin Goldie," a 2 year old daughter of Whirlhill Kingpin. Consigned by Dale Hiestand and Irwin Engle of Bainbridge, she was purchased for $5100 by S and H Acres. She's due to freshen in late October.

A cow and calf combination - one of several offered in the sale - received a top bid of $4900.

Noting the wide range of geography represented by buyers and sellers, Nichol commented: "There was tremendous crowd interest . . . it's a tribute to the job of selection done by John Howard of our State College staff." The sale was managed by the Pa. Holstein Association, with Paul Countryman chairing the sale committee.

Ronald Poole of Clear Spring, Md., who was in charge of the stable crew at the Pennsylvania All-American's Invitational Holstein Sale, holds the top seller of the sale.

Market hog sale sets record

EPHRATA - The junior market hog sale held at the Ephrata Fair on Thursday evening set a record for the top price received. Gary Eberly's grand champion brought $2.50 per pound in comparison to 90 cents a pound for the champion last year. The animal was purchased by Hatfield packing.

Steve Strauss had the reserve champion hog for which he received $1.23 per pound. Penn Packing was the purchaser.

The sale grossed over $4711 and had an average of 50.96 cents a pound for the animals. Thirty-eight head went through the sale ring.

While there were only about seven buyers, the bidding went fast and everything sold well. The auctioneer for the event was Randall Kline, Stevens, Pa.

Other buyers for the sale were the Brownstown Bank, Knights Meats, New Holland Sales Stables, and L. Pfautz.

Gehman's Feed Mill, Denver, donated the champion and reserve champion trophies for the show.

Council reorganizes

GETTYSBURG - A reorganizational meeting of Adams-Franklin-York Council of Farmer Cooperatives was held at Adams Electric Copperative headquarters office, here.

Officers elected were: president, Bob Whitman, Gettysburg, of Agway; vice-president, Jim Lytle, Chambersburg, of Cumberland Valley Cooperative; and secretary-treasurer, Gil Evans, Littlestown, of Adams Electric Cooperative.

Forrest Stoucl , Chairman of the Co-op Month Banquet, reported on plans for this event to be held on October 14 at the Cashtown Firehall. Tickets will be sold by all council members.

Serving on the council are: Adams Electric Cooperative, Agway, Cumberland Valley Cooperative, Federal Land Bank, Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Eastern Milk Producers, Adams, Franklin, and York County Extension Services, Lehigh Valley Farmers Cooperative, and Production Credit Association.

Standing committees will be appointed at the next council meeting on October 19.

What's New

Plastic Stencil for Posted Signs

Ever hear a farmer, rancher, timberman, hunting or fishing camp operator fuss about missing or defaced posted signs? A Mississippi rancher has the answer.

It is a new, high impact, self-cleaning, plastic stencil that the user can paint one or hundreds of posted signs. Being flexible, the patented design allows it to fit flush against a curved or flat surface to make a neat readable sign.

It is the easiest, quickest, cheapest and most attention getting way of posting land. Paint cost is approximately 10 cents per posted sign.

Proportionate vertical signs from 16 inch (lettering) to 30 inch (with freehand painted circle or horizontal bands). Horizontal signs from 12 inches to 30 inches. A standard highway STOP sign measures 30 inches.

Posting one or more sides of trees, utility poles, fence posts or gates will get maximum attention from potential trespassers.

Instructions and tension bands with clips for quick easy stencil attachment and removal are included with stencil.

Appropriate for any All-American Dairy Show, but especially meaningful during the Bicentennial Year was this stall decoration calling attention to Ned McDonald's Guernseys.

60 Bu. Seed Corn — Average Price $25.24
SAVINGS $10 - $12 per bu.
($600-720 total savings)
(compared to current unit prices by competition.)

— PERFORMANCE —

1. Compare university commercial corn trials over the past years and note that Doebler's Hybrids have an excellent record of performance.

2. Visit the Doebler's variety test plots near you for a first hand look.

3. Ask neighbors who use Doebler's Hybrids just how they perform on their farms.

4. Another way to judge performance is to consider the success of the producing company. Doeblers have 2000 acres of seed corn under production this year — the biggest acreage yet!! Sales have expanded into 5 middle Atlantic states and are at record levels.

Doeblers is a family operated seed corn business started in Clinton County in 1935. In relation to competition, Doeblers operate with a very low overhead and a limited advertising budget — therefore the realistic prices. For hybrids that are bred, tested and grown for the East — plant Doeblers.

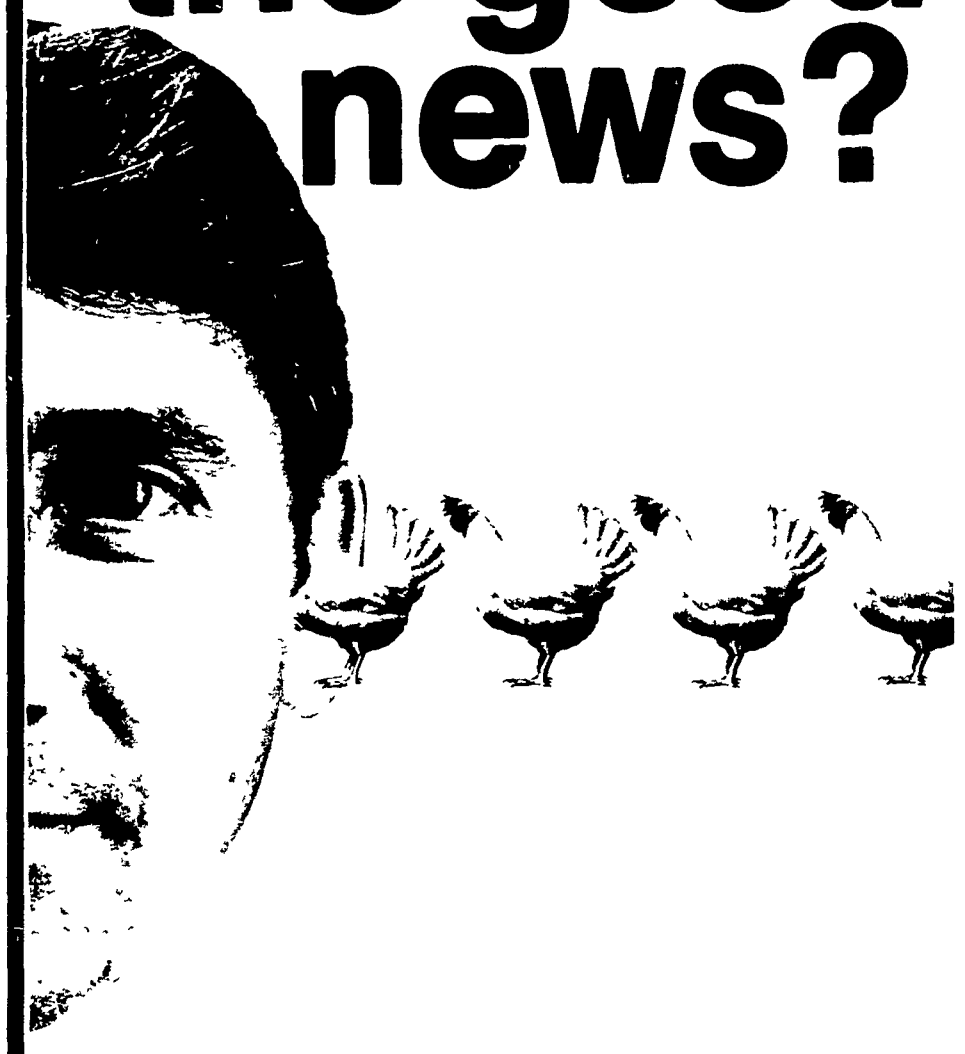
Heard the good news?



The business

Between 1972 and 1973 an old friend of the commercial egg producer quietly slipped from view. Some folks called her the best feathered friend they ever had. They've missed the "old" B-300 sorely in the last few years. And they've told us so.

When the "old" B-300 – we call her the B-300V – retired from Random Sample Testing in 1973, she had an unmatched record of consistent performance. More importantly, she was a legend in her time...in the field...in your poultry house. She made businessmen out of thousands of poultrymen. She was the standard to which competitive strains compared their performance.

The B-300V was nearly perfect for the times. But we knew that times were changing. We knew that tomorrow's top layer had to have a stronger eggshell. We were committed to making the B-300V tomorrow's top layer. Tomorrow is here.

For the past 5 years, the B-300V has been in a concentrated program of eggshell improvement. It has paid off in results...without sacrificing the performance that made her your top choice in the "good old days."

Dust off your old records and take another look. Better yet, ask your Babcock distributor for his latest performance data on the B-300V.

Try a flock. Compare it to the best of your present stocks. We know you're going to be pleasantly surprised.

The businessman's bird is back...and better than ever before. The B-300V.

Something new is hatching at your Babcock distributor's...today!

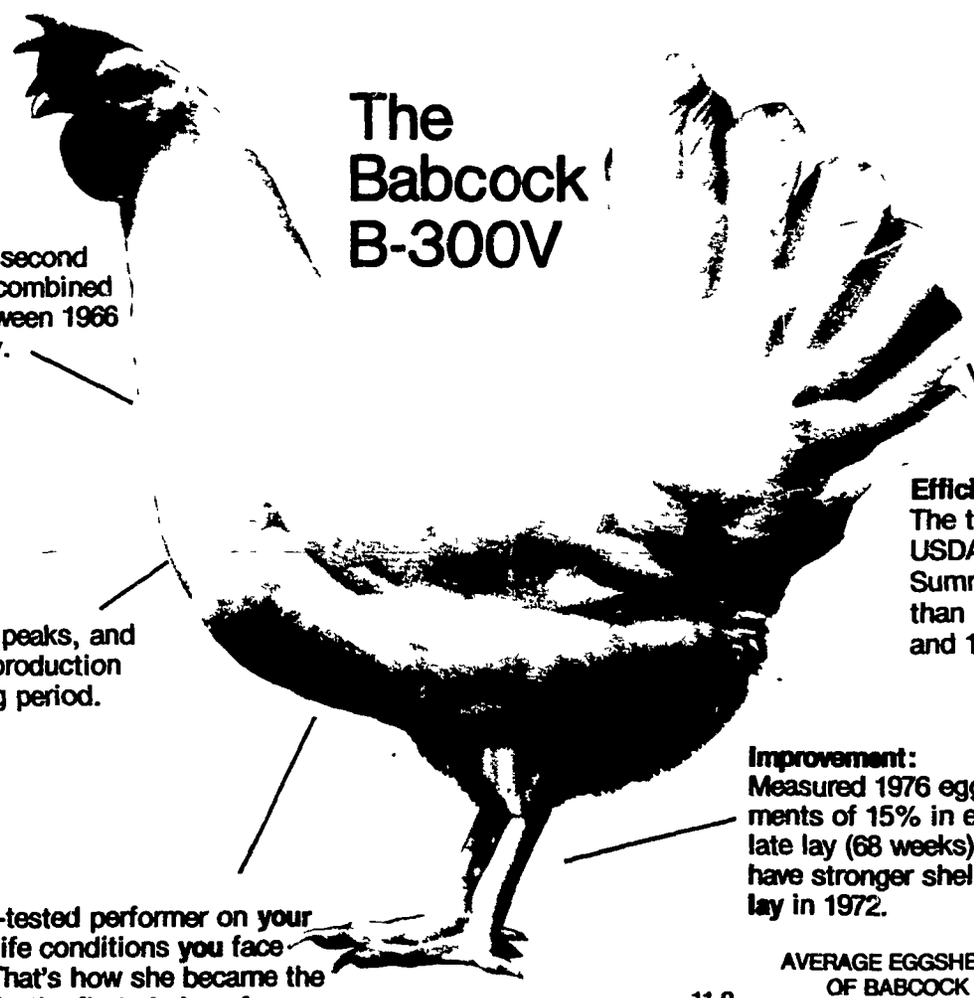
nessman's bird is back!



The Babcock B-300V

Consistency:
The only layer to place first or second (IOFCC) in every USDA 2-year combined Random Sample Summary between 1966 and 1973, her last year of entry.

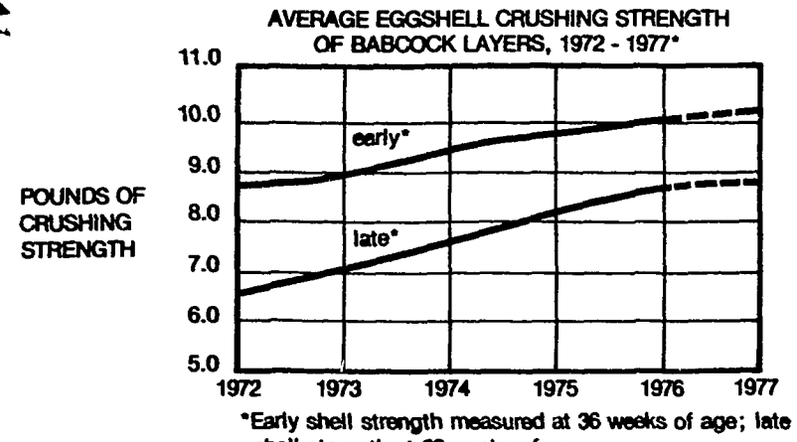
Performance:
Legendary 90% plus peaks, and consistent, top egg production throughout the laying period.

Efficiency:
The top average feed converter in the USDA 2-year combined Random Sample Summaries of any bird entered for more than 2 consecutive years between 1966 and 1973.

Improvement:
Measured 1976 eggshell crushing strength improvements of 15% in early lay (36 weeks) and 30.8% in late lay (68 weeks). B-300V's hatched in 1977 will have stronger shells in late lay than they did in early lay in 1972.

Reliability:
The B-300V is a time-tested performer on your farm, under the real-life conditions you face day-in and day-out. That's how she became the "businessman's bird"...the first choice of producers wherever eggs are produced at a profit!

AVERAGE EGGSHELL CRUSHING STRENGTH OF BABCOCK LAYERS, 1972 - 1977*



*Early shell strength measured at 36 weeks of age; late shell strength at 68 weeks of age.

Susannah Wright is a special creation of Mrs Newcomer for a Bicentennial doll contest.

Dolls, dolls and more dolls

Homestead Notes

Mrs. Newcomer holds Benjamin Franklin and Betsy Ross, door stop dolls made and sold by members of the Mountville Fire Company Auxiliary.

Shirley Newcomer lives in a little girl's paradise

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

It is a little girl's paradise. Holly Hobbie, Raggedy Ann and Andy, Betsy Ross, and Benjamin Franklin live side by side with newborn dolls, double dolls, Bicentennial dolls, and just plain lovable dolls.

Where could this paradise be? It is not a toy store; it is the basement of Mrs. Charles Newcomers' Mountville Home at 100 Central Manor Road.

It is in this basement that each doll is lovingly stitched, stuffed, and dressed. And, it is quickly evident that each one takes on a personality of its own in the process.

Shirley Newcomer says she began making dolls about 25 years ago, even though she had three sons. She had moved here from Louisiana and didn't know many people. She said, "I was new in the neighborhood and had plenty of time on my hands before my first son was born. I made his whole layette." As her family grew she began sewing in earnest for her boys, and also found some time for needlepoint and embroidery.

Because she had plenty of time, she said, "My mother sent me a book of gifts to make. There were dolls and bean bag patterns which I used."

Gradually she began collecting doll patterns, and turning them into the real thing. She said she makes dolls "out of almost anything, and some of them can get pretty intricate."

Many of her patterns have come from women's magazines, and she said she feels many women don't undertake these dolls because they must enlarge patterns from grids. She said, "It's really easy after you've done it once." Obviously, from her collection, there's not a doll pattern which escapes her notice.

There is a lot of hand sewing in constructing the dolls and putting heads and arms on bodies, but sometimes even the clothes require hand work. Mrs. Newcomer said, "Some of the clothing is too little to get under the sewing machine needle." She said she saves up the hand sewing and does it in the evening while she watches television.

Her dolls are dressed completely including panties, petticoats, slippers and other accoutrements. But she said it was a shock for her to discover that apparently colonial ladies did not wear panties. So, because she likes her dolls to be correct, she does not add panties to her colonial dolls.

She has a set of "Little Women" dolls, made of cloth to resemble those dolls which were once made of kid. The dresses have lace and ribbons, and the petticoats feature tucks which serve as stiffening to make the dresses stand out. They also wear felt slippers and separate spats.

Despite the delicate appearance of some of her dolls, Mrs. Newcomer said she makes them so they can be played with, and actually has a built-in tester in her granddaughter. She stuffs the dolls with polyster fill and says the dolls are washable and dryable. That isn't the case, of course, for the several dolls which have been topped off with real hair instead of the yarn variety.

She does not always follow patterns, and shows a real touch of creativity in several of the dolls she has made. One is made to resemble a real state trooper with a uniform authentic in every detail. This will be an heirloom for her granddaughter since it is patterned after her daughter-in-law's father. She also has created a doll which resembles those often pictured on card shop paper bags.

Most of the doll faces are embroidered, and in may cases they proved too small for a standard embroidery hoop. Mrs. Newcomer solved that problem by cutting out the top of an empty margarine tub and cutting the center out of the lid. When you place fabric between the two pieces it serves nicely as a miniature embroidery hoop.

The Bicentennial year has been an inspiration to Mrs. Newcomer, and she dressed a wide variety of dolls for the occasion. She helped the Mountville Fire Comapny Auxiliary, of which she is a member, make door stop dolls to resemble Betsy Ross and Benjamin Franklin. They are authentic to the detail of having tiny scissors in Betsy's sewing basket and spectacles on Benjamin's face.

She also dressed "Barbie" dolls as a colonial family and she made many stuffed dolls in colonial costumes. She made two well-dressed colonial dolls, one of which features a fur-lined cape and red velvet muff. Two matching dolls are a boy dressed in typical colonial garb and a country girl. The country girl is carrying her knitting in her apron - the knitting has been done with toothpicks. To complete her colonial doll grouping she has a newborn in a basket bed and a colonial toy doll puppet constructed as pioneer children might have made it with scraps from their mother's sewing basket.

As her real Bicentennial project, Mrs. Newcomer decided to respond to a newspaper announcement of a doll contest being coordinated partly through the William Penn Museum in Harrisburg. The contest rules said the dolls had to be dressed as an historical Pennsylvania figure.

After some thought and research, Mrs. Newcomer narrowed the wide field of possibilities to Harriet Lane, niece of Pennsylavnia's only president, James Buchanan, and Susannah Wright, daughter of the operator of Wright's Ferry. Mrs. Newcomer finally selected Susannah Wright because of her interesting history, although there was no picture available.

Susannah's father, who hailed from Lancashire, England, played a role in the naming of Lancaster, and was commissioned by the Crown to experiment with hemp. After being educated in Europe, Susannah came to this country and became the first person in America to raise silkworms. The fabric was spun in England, and then Susannah herself made homemade dyes to color the skilk, some of which she presented to the queen. She was interested in herbs and plants and compounded medicines. She and Benjamin Franklin were friends, and it is said that he wrote the "Ode to Hospitality" with her in mind.

Yet only a few things are known about her person. She was "not pretty," was a small woman, and was a Quaker [illegible] the age of 79, and [illegible] at this age that Mrs. Newcomer chose to depict her. Susannah, the contest doll, is dressed as a Quaker, with an inside bonnet of white, and an outside bonnet of grey, and a grey dress. And, according to legend about the colonials, Susannah, the proper Quaker, is dressed without panties, but with silk stockings. She is wearing wire-rimmed spectacles, and Mrs. Newcomer achieved a very effective wrinkled face by stitching through the face at intervals.

Despite the careful study, Susannah was not a winner in the contest. Organizers expected 50 dolls and got well over 200. There were two winners selected from the total. But Mrs. Newcomer enjoyed carrying out her Bicentennial project and seeing the other dolls entered in the contest.

Mrs. Newcomer makes dolls occasionally for friends and for their friends, but she said she is really not interested in taking orders for her little people because then "it ceases to be a hobby," then.

She is a member of the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary and gave them several dolls for their Christmas bazaar many years ago. Consequently, she has worked with them on making other dolls for the annual bazaar.

She is not demonstrating her work at the Lancaster Town Fair as she did last year at the request by the organizers. She said it is too difficult to have dolls to sell and to resist people who want to order them. And she repeats again her reluctance to go into any kind of doll-making business.

She does enjoy talking about her work and in the process of preparing for talks she has done a little study of the background of dolls. She said dolls have been discovered into prehistoric times, but they were not toys then. Rather they were fashioned in the image of ancestors and put in graves. Since people did not know where they were going when they died, they tried to put the good attributes of their ancestors in these dolls, hoping to make the way smoother.

Eventually, Mrs. Newcomer said, dolls were put on top of graves, in bigger and bigger sizes. Eventually they were made full-sized and of wax in the image of the person in the grave. This, she said, is the way wax museums were begun.

Mrs. Newcomer was a medical technician before her marriage and said she has no formal sewing training - except high school sewing, "which I hated."

Shirley

She is currently secretary of the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary, assistant secretary of the Mountville Fire Company Auxiliary and was a 4-H cooking leader for the Mountville 4-H club

Mrs Newcomer offers the following advice to would-be doll makers "Stuff a little at a time and fill out everything, even the little fingers Make sure there is enough thickening at the neck to hold the head steady" She also says women shouldn't be afraid to try magazine patterns, but the main ingredient of successful doll-making is "patience."

So whether you have a daughter or granddaughter, or are just a little girl at heart, gather a little of that patience and you might just stitch together a little bit of happiness

With school starting this month, thoughts may be turning to brown bags and that versatile meal-in-your-hand, the sandwich The sandwich was invented by the Fourth Earl of Sandwich Seems he was an avid gambler and disliked having his game interrupted to eat He ordered meat between bread and still had one hand free to gamble.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Home Economist

Look Good Now, Don't Wait 'Til You Lose Extra Weight

Most of us don't look the way we want to Even those with the trimmest figures find something they want to improve So, if you're overweight, make yourself look as attractive and desirable as you can now Don't wait until you've lost all the extra pounds

It's a lot harder to look attractive when you're overweight, but it can help you stick to your diet.

The first step is to believe in yourself. Be positive about your own looks. Take a fresh look at the features you have that you can't change, your height, eyes, cheek bones. Accept those and be happy about the things that make you you.

Then concentrate on the features you want to and can change. It takes time and hard work to lose weight. As you work on this, pay special attention to your appearance.

Use it to encourage yourself in the slow, seemingly endless process of taking off pounds.

Remember, the way you dress is an extension of yourself — a second skin. Clothes help give people a flattering idea of the shape and character of your body if you choose the right clothes.

Use colors, lines, designs and textures in the clothes you wear to make you look pounds thinner. That gives you a good feeling about yourself now. You're worthwhile, so you're worth the time and effort of losing weight.

Don't use clothes to hide yourself. That helps you keep a bad, undesirable picture of yourself in your mind's eye. Then you might not feel good enough about yourself to lose weight. Your energy is spent in feeling bad- and not in changing yourself.

So don't hide. Instead, put your best figure -- and smile - forward That may be just the lift your spirits need to keep you dieting and exercising until you reach the weight you want

Economy Affects Family Life

Recent economic conditions are leaving their mark on family life. Changes, noted by researchers, population experts, social service workers and health professionals in national studies, indicate that the economy is affecting families in the following way.

- Many couples are postponing marriage. In 1974 the marriage rate decreased for the first time in 16 years.
- At the same time, the number of divorces increased for the 12th year in a row.
- Parenthood is being postponed
- Child neglect has increased because of unemployment and loss of control of family finances

Economic conditions have caused stress in many marriages Due in part to this situation, couples are seeking help from marriage counseling services

- Another result of social stress is the increase on crime More property crimes, such as shoplifting, fraud and bank robbery are occurring, according to a study by the Federal Bureau of Prisons
- There's been an increase in the number of persons suffering from depression, hypertension and anxiety Mental health professionals say many persons who lose their jobs suffer from feelings of failure, defeat and worthlessness

Society 23

The September meeting of Society 23 was held at the Manor Brethren-in-Christ Chruch, Lancaster RD, with the ladies from Society 10 as guests

Mrs Edgar Funk conducted the business meeting Twenty-five dollars was donated to the United Fund

Dates to be remembered were noted On October 2, the David Charles Estate will go on sale with the society selling food All food should be brought to the sale as early as possible October 9 'bowling night' will be held with husbands and family invited On September 30, October 1, and October 2, the Heart Association needs volunteers to sell apples at Park City shopping mall, and on November 6 is the county convention

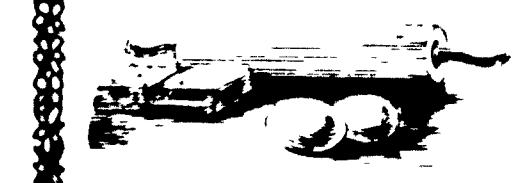
Home on The Range



September is "Better Breakfast Month," a time for everyone to think anew of their breakfast habits The body is refreshed after a good night's sleep, but it needs refueling, too From dinner time in the evening until breakfast next day could span 12 hours, skipping breakfast could put another six hours between meals. The body can run pretty low on energy in that time

Nutritionists cite two important benefits from breakfast. For one, it usually provides nutrients that may not be furnished adequately by other meals. These are vitamin C from fruits, and calcium, riboflavin, and other nutrients from milk as a beverage or served over cereal. For the second benefit, it helps to restore the glucose level in the blood which drops after a period without food. Carbohydrates from bread, cereals, and sugar are used most readily to make up this deficit Performance on the job is improved and accidents are less likely with breakfast under the belt

Despite all the proven advantages of breakfast, it remains our most neglected meal Poor breakfast habits are frequently formed during the teen years, a period when good nutrition is extremely essential for body development

In one breakfast study, people who skipped breakfast ended up with an average of 40 per cent less calcium and ascorbic acid, and 10 per cent less iron and thiamin than breakfast eaters. A group of college women who skipped the meal were found to snack more than their friends who made it down to breakfast. Those snacks were high in carbohydrates but relatively lower in other nutrients than the foods served at breakfast

Breakfast need not be elaborate A serving of citrus fruit, and cereal with a glass of milk is good practice If time permits and calories are no problem, add some embellishments You'll get the day off to a better start

Ida's Notebook

Ida Fisher

In the mornings as I make the two trips up our lane to the school bus stop one mile away, I notice that the road has become the gathering place for many animals The grey squirrels scamper from one corn field to another, the pheasants run for cover and the many mourning doves reluctantly take to the air as though resenting my intrusion

The thought that fall is approaching was clearly brought to my mind a few weeks ago, when we visited a State Park in York County It was a day when the temperature barely reached 70 degrees and there was a stiff breeze too The children had planned to go swimming and go swimming they did The lifeguards were a sight to behold They couldn't have saved anyone for several minutes until they would have unwound themselves from two bath towels and one big blanket To complete the picture they wore kerchiefs and appeared to have a cup of coffee sitting at their feet.

Now my husband and I felt we used good sense, and we went hiking instead of swimming after our picnic lunch. We saw many wild ducks on a man-made lake and a large group of cattails. When I wished for just one of these long, brown, fuzzy spikes for a dried arrangement Allen told me there would be none there to enjoy if everybody took

Just one So we skipped stones and I ate some huge wild cherries from a tree along the path

We got home and found a 6 ft piece of glass pipeline had broken in the milkhouse and had to be replaced before we could milk the cows Conveniences are fine when they work but so many times they need repairs

Make a pumpkin duck for Fall

By JOANNE SPAHR

Pumpkin season is here. That means spicy pumpkin pies, breads and cakes. And before long decorative Halloween pumpkins will be sprouting out of house windows everywhere you look.

However, beyond these two purposes for cooking and as Halloween decorations pumpkins are rarely utilized.

One type, however makes clever Fall decorations. With just a few cut outs from construction paper and some cellophane tape, you can transform a neck pumpkin into a smartly dressed duck for the Fall.

To do this, use the patterns included below and cut two feet out of orange construction paper, one collar out of white, and one bow tie and two wings out of black.

To make the eyes and buttons of the duck, use a dime as a pattern, and cut them out of black construction paper, also. The number of buttons used is a matter of choice and is dependent on the size of the pumpkin.

The duck's top hat is the most difficult part of the whole costume to make. To begin, cut a strip of black paper about six inches in length and about one inch in width. On the inside, tape the two ends together to form a circle. This is the beginning piece for the crown of the hat. Using the circle which is created as a pattern, trace the edge of the circle onto black construction paper. Cut this out, and on the inside of the hat to be, tape this piece to one of the open ends of the crown.

The only piece remaining in order to finish the hat is the brim. To make this cut a circle about twice the size of the top of the hat. Again tape this to the hat on the inside so it will not be seen. Then if the size is out of proportion, trim it to the proper diameter.

When the hat is finished cut a strip of white paper as wide as desired for the hat band.

To adhere the various pieces of the costume to the neck pumpkin, use tape. Doughnuts " The eyes are placed on either side of the stem, and the hat, of course, sits on top of this newly created head. From there, dressing the duck is easy. The collar, which has the bow tie pasted onto the center of it, is placed at the base of the neck of the pumpkin. The wings go on either side of the round part of the pumpkin (duck's body) and the buttons run down the center of the body between the wings.

When making the duck, do not puncture the pumpkin if you want to use it for cooking at some later date.

This simple craft can make a conversation piece for almost any room in the house in a matter of minutes. And, if you or your children have spare pieces of construction paper lying around, the cost is an exorbitant 39 cents.

With just a few pieces of construction paper, a neck pumpkin turns into a dressed-up duck for Autumn.

Restrictions set

HARRISBURG - A recent act further restricts the use of tree stands and climbing devices by Pennsylvania hunters.

Under provisions of The Game Law, it is now unlawful to damage any tree or trees in any manner on public or private property while hunting or while preparing to hunt as a result of: constructing any tree stand, platform, or any other manmade support of any description; using a portable tree stand; using any climbing device or implement of any description.

The new legislation does not prohibit the construction or use of tree stands. It simply prohibits the damaging of any tree in any manner as a result of building or using a tree stand or platform of any description, climbing devices, etc.

The act does not apply to a landowner or to any person to whom the landowner has given written permission in advance.

Any person who violates the new law is subject to a $25 fine and payment for actual damage done to any tree.

Introducing the basic "keep the heat in the house and out of the chimney" Fire Grate.

With most fireplaces, most of the heat goes up the chimney.
Instead of out into the room.
But with the heavy-duty Fire Grate by Shenandoah, and the help of its 61 watt insulated blower, three times the heat goes out into the room
And three times the economy goes back into your pocket.
That's getting back to basics.
And that's Shenandoah

Today is hunting day

HARRISBURG — Today (Saturday) has been set aside as National Hunting and Fishing Day by Congressional resolution and by Presidential and Governor's proclamations.

The day will be celebrated in recognition of the sportsmen's role in conservation. Its theme is "Making a Good Thing Better."

As a part of this year's hunting season, the Pennsylvania Game Commission has placed bands on the legs of doves, ducks and geese in a statewide program aimed at gaining additional information on the habits of these game birds.

Anyone who recovers any of these bands is asked to return the bands to the Division of Game Management, Pennsylvania Game Commission, P. O. Box 1567, Harrisburg, Pa. 17120.

Berks County winds up season with Oley Fair

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks County Reporter

OLEY It was a short walk, but a wet one, as young people led their animals from the livestock quarters to the show ring at the Oley Valley Community Fair this past weekend Although periodic rain and threatening skies persisted throughout the three-day fair causing some rescheduling of contest events, the judging of cattle, sheep, swine, and poultry went on as planned Thursday morning, prior to the fair's official opening

Farm story recognized

HERSHEY Mrs Priscilla Reade, a bureau manager for the Sunbury Daily Item, has won the first annual Pennsylvania Farm Journalism Contest sponsored by PennAg Industries Association, thereby collecting a plaque and a check for $100 She received the recognition last week at the annual PennAg convention here in the Hershey Convention Center

"What a hell of a way to make a living," is the way Mrs Reade began her award winning story about the life of a modern dairy farmers' wife. To get the story, Mrs Reade - who calls herself a city-bred journalist - spent 24 hours on a family dairy farm in Selinsgrove. A Daily Item photographer followed her through the day, and began shooting even as she contemplated the early-morning reality of dairy farming through a bleary-eyed 5 a.m haze.

Before her brief on-the-job training came to an end, Mrs. Reade had milked cows, scrubbed stalls, fed calves, picked fresh vegetables from the garden - and gained a new appreciation for the origins of the milk cartons that show up on her kitchen table.

Judges for the contest were Robert Boyer, editor of the ALTOONA MIRROR, Nelson Gotwalt, extension editor at Penn State University, and Richard Wanner, public relations director for PennAg.

Green to visit

YORK - A tentative schedule of appearances for Congressman William J. Green, candidate for United States Senate, has been listed.

Green will appear only once in LANCASTER FARMING'S major coverage area. That date is September 27 at 6 - 8 p.m. at the York Lancaster Steelworkers and York County Labor Council Rally for Green. This rally will be held at the main pavilion on the York County Fair Grounds.

who finances

acres, bushels, cases, crates, kilowatts, gallons, board feet, tons, head, bales, and lugs?

WE DO. The Farm Credit System. We're agriculture's own credit source. Owned by and operated for the benefit of farmers, ranchers, and growers.

We help farmers buy and improve acres that produce millions of bushels of grain, cases of eggs, crates of oranges, gallons of milk, board feet of lumber, tons of hay, countless head of livestock, bales of cotton, lugs of peaches. And all other kinds of products of American Agriculture.

There's more. We provide money for feed, seed, fertilizer, feeder calves, baby chicks, machinery, and all the other supplies to operate a modern farm.

It's our job to gather the most important crop of all - capital. Money for all the things it takes to keep agriculture at full capacity, able to feed and help clothe the other 95 percent of our population . . . plus untold millions in other lands.

Charles shows champion hog

LAMPETER — Cliff Charles, 21, Lancaster R2, finished up his last year in FFA with a bang. Two months ago he had the grand champion in the Lancaster FFA show, and on Wednesday afternoon he showed the grand champion market hog of the West Lampeter Community Fair, making it the second year in a row that he's taken that title, here.

Cliff noted that all the top animals were pretty closely matched this year, and that the only extreme his animal may have had was in length, although it was only a slight bit longer than the other competitors.

My hog weighed about 240 pounds, which is heavy for a champion," he said, but it was clean and fat free."

The hog was also well balanced with moderate muscling.

A Duroc, the hog was the same breed as the champion Charles showed at the FFA show. Although the animals weren't from the same litter, they both came from the farrowing operation Charles has in partnership with his father, Abram H. Charles. Charles noted that he had to do very little with the animal to get it ready for the show and that good breeding had a lot with it taking the top slot. He did make mention, however, that the feed pre-mix he used made a noticeable difference in his show hogs.

Even with his successes, Charles has no plans to attend the Pennsylvania State Farm Show this January because he will be too old to compete.

Charles' grand champion was also the first place heavyweight. The other results from the market hog show were: Cliff Charles, champion pair of two; Bruce Landis, Lancaster R6, champion pair of four; Skip Rice, Lancaster R2, first place lightweight pair; Bob Hess, first place medium weight hog.

The top place winners in the open breeding swine show were: Tom Ruoss, Ephrata R2, champion boar of show; Rick Pfautz, Stevens R1, first place sow and litter; Tom Ruoss, champion female of show; Rick Pfautz, senior gilt; Tom Ruoss, senior spring gilt; Rick Pfautz, junior spring gilt; and Rick Pfautz aged sow.

George, as the steer is affectionately named, has a lot of length and width to his quarter according to his owner, and is a straight-lined, trim, well balanced animal which should hang a carcass of fine red meat

Bred in Iowa, the steer was purchased from Larry Weaver, New Holland, brother in law to the young champion

The reserve champion steer belonging to Bob Hess was also the FFA champion of the show Hess, the son of Mr and Mrs Gerald Hess, Lancaster R2, admitted to being a bit "surprised" that this particular animal took the title

PennAg 'alive and well'

HERSHEY - PennAg Industries Association, a trade organization of some 400 Pennsylvania Agribusiness firms is "alive and well" and busier than ever, according to PennAg executive vice-president, Donald W. Parke Parke made the announcement in an address he gave here last week during the Association's annual convention.

In the past year, Parke said, PennAg had cooperated with legislators and regulatory agencies in developing legislation and rules affecting many different areas of agribusiness. Among many other things, they had gone to bat for members to reopen a flood-damaged rail line.

"We have also been involved with countless ag groups in Pennsylvania, including Penn State, other agricultural trade associations and various departments of government. PennAg has had a very active year in educational programs And we expect to launch a workmen's compensation insurance plan very soon "

In their public relations program, Parke said the association had kept the public aware of PennAg activities and positions, launched the first annual Pennsylvania Farm Journalism Contest and conducted an advertising and public relations survey of all members.

Parke urged the members to cooperate in an upcoming nationwide survey of feed manufacturers. He said the survey will be conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Its aim is to determine trends in feed production and marketing to aid the industry in long and short term planning.

Colored breeds show in rain at Solanco

Lois Wanner, Narvon R2, had the grand champion Brown Swiss, and Lee Ferguson, Kirkwood R1, had the reserve grand champion in this breed. Shown here is Lois' four-year-old grand champion, Leon A Beauty Sharon

William Arrowsmith's six-year-old aged cow took the grand champion Jersey title on Thursday at the Solanco Fair. This is her second year for winning at the Fair, and along with her grand champion title, she was also best udder of the show.

QUARRYVILLE — While the Holstein show at the Solanco Fair enjoyed fairly nice weather, the colored breeds weren't as lucky. Drenching rain made the show a little crowded and uncomfortable as all the animals crammed under the tents where the judging took place.

Nevertheless, exhibitors and judges withstood the unpleasant working conditions and approximately 75 animals were evaluated during the afternoon.

Ayrshires

Warren Schmuck, Peach Bottom R2, attained his goal of proving that his Ayrshires were just as good as Holsteins by taking nearly every top place in the Ayrshire breed. He had first place in the junior yearling, two-year-old, three-year-old, aged cow, best three females, best udder, dairy herd, and dam-daughter classes. Along with Karen Schmuck, he also had first place produce of dam.

Kristina Esbenshade had the first place junior calf, and Anita Brommer had the first place senior calf. The top placing senior yearling and intermediate calf were shown by Karen Schmuck.

The champions for this breed were: Warren Schmuck, grand champion, senior champion, senior reserve champion, and junior division grand champion; Kristina Esbenshade - junior champion, junior division reserve champion, reserve grand champion; and Karen Schmuck, junior reserve champion.

Jerseys

Three families dominated the top placings in the Jersey breed. Maureen Hough had first place in the intermediate calf, and senior calf, while George and Doris

Matthew Arrowsmith, Peach Bottom R1, who celebrated his 12th birthday on Thursday of Fair Week, had the reserve grand champion and also the junior division champion in the Jersey breed. Matthew's animal was a two-year-old named Hillacres Surville Cognac.

Brothers take top beef titles at Solanco

QUARRYVILLE — Brothers Todd and Troy Groff took the grand and reserve grand champion over all of the 4-H and FFA Baby Beef Show held at the Solanco Fair on September 16. The sons of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Groff, Quarryville R1, the boys belong to the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club.

Todd, the grand champion winner, is 10 years old and is in his first year of the 4-H club. Although this is his first animal, Todd was not totally surprised that he did so well.

"My brother got a blue ribbon last year," he commented.

Troy, his older brother referred to, took this year's reserve champion honors with an Angus-Simmental cross.

Todd's grand champion is a purebred Angus fed with a combination of bought mixture, oats, a high moisture corn, and haylage. The animal was bred at Octorara Farms, Nottingham.

These animals were grand champion and reserve champion of the 4-H show, also.

The grand champion of the FFA show was a purebred Angus owned in partnership by Tim Baughman and Loren Buchen, Quarryville R2.

Tim, another first year exhibitor, is 15 years old and a member of Solanco FFA.

His animal was also bred at Octorara Farms and, according to Baughman, was one of the bottom steers of the lot.

According to Dr. William Fredd, Solanco Vo-Ag teacher, there's as much to the feeling and care an animal receives as there is to its stock.

Tim's champion was fed a diet of mostly roasted soybeans.

The reserve FFA champion was a heavyweight Hereford exhibited by Sam Long, Peach Bottom R2.

The results from the show are as follows:

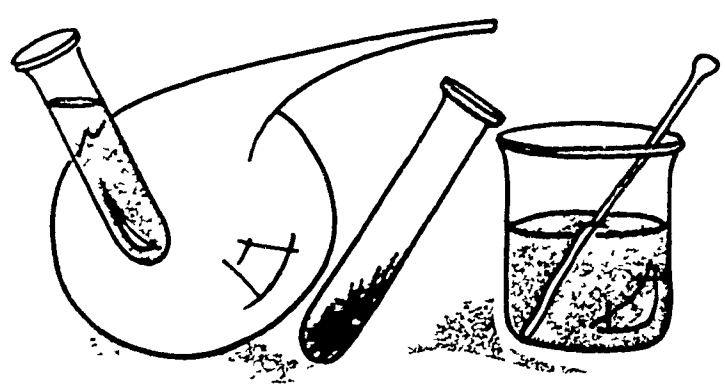
AGRI-KING
KEY TO PROFIT



IS TESTING NECESSARY?

The third in a series of six articles - The first two articles ["Why AGRI-KING Builds Rations From The Ground Up" and "What is a Balanced Ration?"] are available on request. Call 717-394-3047, or 717-626-1164.

Yes, in today's farming economic situation it is very important for you the farmer to know what you have grown so you know best how to feed it. Some people say "testing is useless and not worth it", and we would be the first to agree with them unless you use the results of these tests to balance your feeding ration the AGRI-KING way. Some people say "Averages are good enough". Averages are the best of the worst and the worst of the best, and we hardly ever see an average test go through our lab.

I'm sure you're glad that the shoe industry doesn't do what the feed industry has done for years - just make an average size shoe. Some of us would have awful big blisters before the day was through. Or how about the clothing industry - most people would look ridiculous in the average size clothes. But yet for years we've been trying to feed livestock by book value or "by guess and by golly". To be exact you have a one in one thousands chance of being right by using averages.

We've seen haylage samples running as low as 10.28 percent protein to as high as 23.17 percent protein. Calcium varied from .69 to 2.04 percent and phosphorus ranged from .21 to .52 percent.

On hay we've seen samples run from 22.44 percent protein to as low as 6.81 percent protein. Calcium varied from 2.06 to .64 percent and phosphorus from .53 to .22 percent. In corn silage we've seen protein range from 12 percent protein to 4.8 percent protein, Calcium from .96 to .40 percent and phosphorus from .46 to .19 percent. Some experts would say these variances don't make much difference but if you ever figured what it takes to balance a ration using first one figure and then the other, you would realize what a big difference it does make.

These tests are an example of how they vary throughout the country from one neighbor's farm to another. There are many reasons why they vary - some we can help and others we can't. The fertility of the soil, weather conditions, variety of seed, maturity of the plant at harvest, and proper fertilization are some of the things that determine test results.

We must work with what you have in YOUR hay mow and silo in order to balance your ration the AGRI-KING way.What is correct for one farmer is hardly ever right for his neighbor.

HARRISBURG - Two FFA members from the Cloister Chapter in Ephrata walked away with championship banners at the FFA Holstein Show, here, this week. They competed against the best among their group from all across the state.

Taking the reserve senior and reserve grand champion banners was Russell Kline, Denver R3, who last year had the grand champion at the same show. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kline, the young dairyman works with his own dairy herd in northern Lancaster County and is a perennial contender for top recognition. His reserve champion this year was "Chflokie Vanalso Royal," a 5-year-old daughter of "Chflokie Popeye."

Another member of the Cloister FFA Chapter, Paul Horning, showed the reserve junior champion. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Horning, Stevens R1.

Paul L. Brownlee, Avella R1, had the grand champion. Last year the same animal won the reserve honors. He won the honors with his five-year-old cow "Morganglo Eden Sue," sired by "Winterhur Eden Select." Paul, who is 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brownlee.

Carl Yoder, Elverson R1, took the honors with his senior calf by showing her as the junior champion of the show. His cow, "Rocky-Side D.T. Snowcap," was sired by "Paclamar Double Triune."

Girls outshow

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG - Unless a person is familiar with the Farm Show Complex, here, one might not appreciate the size of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show which took place under its roof this week. The place was packed full with cows and exhibitors - in the cattle barns, machinery exhibit areas, sheep barns, and hog barn.

The Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, which was held Monday in conjunction with the opening of the All-American, is just one segment of the entire affair, but a very significant and important one for youths from across the state. Only the best were represented here, with a blue ribbon at the district shows being a prerequisite to enter. All told, more than 600 animals qualified, but some had to drop out for various reasons. When it was all over, 574 cows, heifer and calves had been paraded through the arena by accomplished 4-H and FFA members.

Winning here meant you had something pretty special, but having an animal here in the first place was an honor in itself. With that, nobody was a loser.

There was some interesting developments as the show progressed. In the Jersey show, for example, girls took all the champion banners. An un[illegible] feat? Not really.

Girls scored in all categories but one - that being the FFA Holstein Show. In the 4-H Holstein show it was a 15-year old Berks County girl, Wendy Shaw, who came up with the grand champion. Later she was named the grand champion and fitter of the entire show and was awarded a $100 U.S. Savings Bond. Another girl, Tamra Yost from Elizabethtown, showed the reserve grand champion 4-H Holstein.

Two sisters, Nedra and Wendy Yoder from Shoemakersville, took three out of four champion or reserve champion banners in Shorthorn competition. They left the fourth for their older brother, Samuel.

A girl won the top spot in Guernsey competition for the third time in four years. Fifteen years old, she loves animals, says her experiences with dairy cattle are far more educational than formal schooling, but is nevertheless studying hard to become a veterinarian some day. "I would most definitely be happy to live on a farm," Alisa Marie Fava emphasized when asked about her future plans. She started in 4-H five years ago with three calves. By the second year she was so enthused

In the Brown Swiss show it was Judith Irons who had the grand champion, while Dean Daubert captured reserve as well as junior champion honors.

Dale Maulfair, Jonestown, managed to get by some stiff competition - much of which came from girls. Dale won the grand champion banner, but from there on down it was the girls who had the champions.

Denise Andrien, who had the reserve grand champion in the Jersey show, began her 4-H project in the usual way - by joining the local club and getting to work. But for her, it meant renovating a doll house into a calf pen. From that humble beginning six years ago came a "career" which now involves 35 head of dairy cattle. She and her younger brother, Bruce, are featured in a separate story elsewhere in this issue.

The other three girls to make it to the top in the Jersey ring were: Elizabeth Eick, grand champion; Darlene McConaughey, junior champion; and Cynthia Waltemyer, reserve junior champion. Miss Eick, 16, is from Columbia Cross Roads and has been a 4-H'er for seven years. This year was the first time she had a grand champion at this show, although she's won a number of ribbons at county and district events. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eick, she owns six Jerseys within her father's herd of 40.

This, the 21st annual Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, was directed by W. Paul Anderson, Penn State, with the help of executive committee members - T.W. Crittenden, Wellsboro; Duane Duncan, Carlisle; Frank Bortz, Penn State; J.C. Fink, Harrisburg; Charles Itle, Harrisburg; Merle Miller, Carlisle; Robert Kauffman, Elizabethtown; and William Guyer, Albion.

Exhibitors were presented with appropriate ribbons and banners, along with prize money (up to $15 for first place) and a plaque for breed champions given by respective breed associations. Special awards were furnished by Hershey Foods Corporation and Harvey Stineman of the Stineman Ribbon and Trophy Mfg. Co.

Judges for the big event included John McKitrick, Columbus, Ohio; Merton Sowerby, Princeton, N.J.; Bonnie Miller, Towanda; Brian Harris, Miland; Galen Smith, Shippensburg; and Ginger Secrist, Fayetteville.

She also won the grand champion fitter and showman awards in both Holstein and overall competition and received a $100 U.S. Savings Bond.

Tamra Yost, 14, of Elizabethtown R2, won reserve grand and reserve senior Holstein honors with "Javin Apollo Etta," a 4-year-old. The animal is sired by "Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe." A 4-H member for six years, Tamra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Yost.

Scott Bauermaster, 18, of Berlin R1, showed "Gladmaster Elevation Baby," a junior yearling that won junior championship honors. The junior champion's sire is "Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation." THEN and NOW!

THEN—The great grandfather of computers is the familiar abacus, which goes back to at least 450 BC and is undoubtedly the most widely used digital computer Using the abacus a skilled operator can add, subtract, multiply and divide at enormous speeds Adding to its ease of use is its portability, which means that since ancient times it could be carried directly to the problems it was designed to solve It was, in fact, the original portable computer

NOW—There's a portable computer that weighs about as much as an office typewriter—just 50 pounds—but has the problem-solving power of a computer that 20 years ago would have weighed a ton and filled a whole room Developed by IBM, this new portable 5100 computer is being used by engineers, businessmen and scientists to solve problems as they arise right on the spot

Glackin has top hogs at Solanco

QUARRYVILLE — Jeff Glackin, Quarryville R3, had the grand champion pair of hogs shown at the Solanco Fair on September 16 His purebred Poland China lightweight animals weighed approximately 206 pounds a piece

Randy Ranck, Quarryville, was close behind Glackin According to John Henkel, judge for the event, Glackin's animals topped Ranck's primarily because of the depth and width of the hams While Ranck had longer animals, Glackin's hogs had better developed ham areas

Jeff and his brothers, Tim and Joe, usually work together when they show their hogs, and last year Joe's animals took the grand champion title of the show.

Whereas the dairy show had a smaller turnout of animals this year, the swine show entries went the other direction. Forty-eight head were shown, which is a larger amount than last year.

"The quality of the top animals is very good," remarked Henkel.

The results of the show are as follows:

Love for animals goes a long way

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG — With a doll house for a arn and borrowed money from her parents, enise Andrien started her own dairy herd age 10 Now, at age 16, she and her unger brothers own 35 head of prize-nning registered dairy cattle and are rtually debt-free

What makes the success story of the ndrien children even more unusual is the ct that they have neither a farm ckground nor a farm of their own The osest they come to it is a 12-acre patch of oodland they proudly call "Shady-Hill-Side arm" and a 50-acre parcel of land which e family rents for raising feed "We call it Shady-Hill-Side Farm" because it's all ade due to the trees," joked 14-year old ruce dryly.

Bruce and Denise have been showing their erseys for five and six years, respectively, nd even such distinguished affairs as the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, which as held here this week at the Farm Show Building, is not out of their class. The rother and sister team qualified with 12 imals and a reserve grand champion was mong their winnings. They were com-peting against the best youngsters in the tate To be eligible for this affair, which ad 652 entries, each animal must have previously won a blue ribbon at its espective district show.

Showing cattle is just part of the fun Denise and Bruce are experiencing. Both enthusiastically affirm that they love every aspect of their farming operation and proclaim that they wouldn't be happy living anywhere but on a farm. Although they don't have a real farm of their own, they live on the outskirts of Downingtown, where their father, a contractor, has 12 acres of woodland.

"My father was employed on a gen-tleman's farm when he was single," Denise explained, "but other than that neither he nor my mother have a farm background." Mrs. Andrien, in fact, had never lived anywhere but in apartments and housing developments prior to the family's moving to the fringes of the rural area. "We've been looking around for a farm," Denise acknowledged, in reference to a question about the problems she and her brothers might be encountering with their enterprise.

Denise was the first of the three children to get herself involved with Jerseys - and more recently a couple of Guernseys. She claims to have had a love for animals since she was a small child, and for that reason also has ambitions for becoming a veterinarian some day. "We had a dog once when I was little, and it had distemper and died - ever since then I've wanted to do something to help animals," she explained while fondly petting her Irish Setter, "Jamie."

How to farm without a farm

Animals are a way of life for the Andrien children

A sensitive and unpretentious young lady, Denise stepped into the world of Jerseys by way of the Chester Valley 4-H Club. A Jersey breeder, Mildred Seeds, was the leader and she soon convinced the 10-year old girl to accept a Jersey calf as a 4-Hproject. Denise gladly accepted and so her doll house became a calf pen. It was just a month later before she purchased her second calf. She kept the second animal for a year, then gave it to her brother who began to share her interest in calves.

Although the money for the original purchases was borrowed, it has all been payed back through the premium monies the kids earn at fairs and shows. Other portions of the ledger remain in balance due to agreements which in essence trade milk and cheese for feed.

A valuable contribution made by Mr. Andrien four years ago was the construction of a small barn which contains nine stalls. "That's all we were going to have," Denise grinned.

As it turned out, it was their father who ended up breaking the agreement to sell the animals when they matured and became of milking age. They haven't sold one yet. "The whole family enjoys it and we all want to go into farming," Denise said in her own tender way.

The responsibilities involved in taking care of animals is something the Andrien children are very familiar with "We have a lot of things at home," Bruce commented Included among the "things" are goats, horses, chickens rabbits, and 'Jamie ' The youngest brother, Lorin, is primarily with the goats and rabbits

Aside from their genuine love for animals and a life on the farm, Bruce and Denise agree wholeheartedly that their undertakings are most educational, and it gives them something to do

' I wish everybody who doesn't live on a farm could get to see some of the stuff that I've seen and all that comes from a farm," said Bruce in a convincing tone of voice Denise nodded in agreement, and said ' this is more educational than school "

Unlike his sister, who dreams of being a veterinarian some day, Bruce is not exactly sure of what he'd like for a career But one thing is definite it'll have to be something which relates closely to agriculture

In acquiring their herd of dairy cattle, the Andriens have had their share of problems as a result of it, and there have even been a few fights between Bruce and Denise "But it seems to always come out for the better," Bruce revealed. The major problem (which has been with them since the very beginning), is the lack of space. They've continually outgrown their modest facilities and for that reason have had to turn the milking herd over to a farmer-friend in Berks County. The Andriens' Jerseys are milked and cared for there without charge, but neither are they receiving anything for the milk. Prior to the initiation of this arrangement, the Andriens milked their cows themselves, with the children taking care of most chores. Their father took care of the morning milkings.

Just about every calf that is born is allowed to live for at least a year. Young bulls which are "half-way decent for shows" are kept for that purpose and later sold for meat.

Both Denise and Bruce are determined to stay with their young business in spite of the "lots of problems" that are connected with it. Denise says she can't picture herself without her cows, and Bruce firmly added: "I'm going to keep it; I can't stand to just sit around. I like all kinds of farm work - it's good for you."

"We started 'this mess' so we have to keep it up," Denise concluded.

National 4-H Week coming

UNIVERSITY PARK - "4-H - Room To Grow" is the theme of this year's National 4-H Week, Oct. 3-9.

More than five million 4-H'ers, their leaders and parents will take part in the annual salute to the Head, Heart, Hands, and Health program.

Observances are expected to center on the 1976 4-H theme, accenting the history and growth, the ideals and goals of the American youth movement now flourishing in over 80 countries.

As in past years, 4-H'ers are planning special recognition events, service projects and recruitment drives in their local communities, counties and states.

National 4-H Week is proclaimed annually by the Cooperative Extension Service, which conducts the 4-H program in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands. Extension professionals recruit, train and assist the nearly 500,000 volunteers who provide local leadership in 4-H activities.

Of the 5.6 million boys and girls from 8 to 19 involved in 4-H, more than 73 per cent belong to clubs and groups.

Nearly 900,000 take part in special 4-H nutrition programs geared to lower-income youth and their families. Another 2.5 million are reached by instructional television series like Mulligan Stew and Living in a Nuclear Age.

Although the majority of 4-H members still live on farms and in rural communities, nearly 20 per cent now come from larger urban and suburban areas.

Since its beginnings around the turn of the century, 4-H has offered practical learning and citizenship experiences to millions of young people. Among the most popular projects today are those related to animals, plants, food, clothing, cultural arts, bicycle care and safety, ecology, jobs and careers.

Private sector donors lend their endorsement and support to the Extension-supervised 4-H program through the National 4-H Service Committee and the National 4-H Foundation.

Sheep show

Brother and sister take top awards at Ephrata

Elizabeth and Chris Herr, Narvon, took nearly every top sheep award at the Ephrata Fair Chris had the champion market lamb, champion pen of three lambs, and reserve champion showman Elizabeth was both champion fitter and showman, and she had the reserve champion pen of three lambs

EPHRATA — Brother and sister, Christian and Elizabeth Herr, Narvon R2, the children of Mr. and Mrs Robert Herr, swept nearly all the championship titles of the Ephrata Fair Lamb show held on Wednesday afternoon.

Christian, 14, had the champion market lamb, the champion pen of three lambs, and was reserve champion sheep showman.

His sister, Elizabeth, 16, took the champion sheep showman and fitter honors, as well as the reserve champion pen of three lambs.

Chris' champion Suffolk market lamb was one of the hardest muscled lambs of the show, which helped to win it the title.

To get the animal into this shape, Chris exercised it every morning and evening.

Chris also feels that its breed may have had a part in its receiving the top title.

"Suffolks are a big meat breed," he commented. He should know the difference between breeds, since each child in the family shows a different breed of sheep, to eliminate too much fierce competition within the family during Fair season. Each year the members in the family trade breeds, and this was Chris' turn for Suffolks.

Elizabeth had Hampshires this year. Besides the other titles, she also had the first place Hampshire pen of three lambs.

The reserve grand champion market lambs belonged to Steven Strauss, Ephrata R1.

Martin top tractor driver

Eberly duo has champion junior market hog

Earl G Martin, Ephrata R2, took first place in tractor driving and second place in double hitch at the Ephrata Fair on Tuesday night

★★★★★★★★★★

EPHRATA - A heavy weight Chester-Hampshire-Duroc cross owned in partnership by Gary and Tony Eberly, Denver R2, was the grand champion of the junior market hog show held on Tuesday night at the Ephrata Fair. The brothers belong to the Cloister FFA chapter and are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Eberly.

One of the brothers, Gary, feels that the awardwinning characteristic of the hog was that it was a "fresher pit," or one that was just right for its size in proportion of fat to muscle.

It definitely was a trim, lean animal, which the brothers attribute to the fact that their hogs are fenced off on a hill and the animals must do a lot of uphill climbing in their daily travels.

Together, the brothers have about 25 hogs in partnership which is easier when it comes to figuring out records, and last year they had the reserve champion animal in the FFA contest at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

In general, however Gary figures it takes a good pig to start out with to take top honors. His pig was bred by Glen Nolt, Manheim.

The reserve champion hog also belonged to a brother team. This time three brothers were involved. Steve, Robert, and Richard Strauss, Ephrata R1, took second place honors with their heavy weight Duroc-Hampshire-Yorkshire cross.

Members of the Cloister FFA, the boys have had successes before this one. Last year, they had the champion at the Ephrata and Manheim Fairs, and they also had the grand champion at the Pennsylvania Farm Show for which they received $10 per pound.

The brothers attribute the top quality of this year's pig to the fact that it was exercised every night and morning.

The animal was bred and purchased from Dutch Valley Farm, Manheim R5.

Steve Strauss was also a champion fitter in the show. He took that honor in the 15 year and over class. Other top fitters were Mike Pfautz, Stevens R1, 9 - 10 year old class and Avery Copenhaver, Stevens R1, 12, 13, and 14 year old class.

In showmanship the top competitors were Mike Pfautz, Avery Copenhaver, and Kerry Boyd, Ephrata R1.

The rest of the results of the evening's competition were as follows.

Behney and Miller top Ephrata poultry show

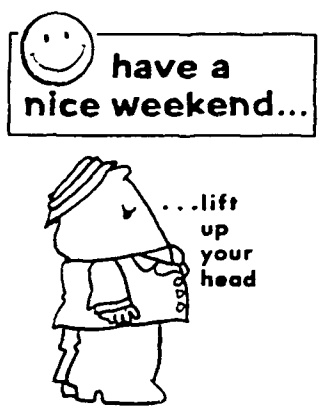
EPHRATA — The team of Ronald Behney and Harold Miller, Myerstown, took two out of three champions of the poultry show held on Wednesday at the Ephrata Fair Their Partridge Plymouth Rock cock was the champion large fowl, and their White Embdon goose was the champion waterfowl. Clarence Minnich, Kutztown R2, showed the champion bantam, a Black Cochin cock.

This year's poultry show, run by the Ephrata Poultry and Bantam Association, had excellent show birds, according to Mahlon Bear, Lititz R1, secretary for the association for 23 years. Ephrata has the only show in the county that exhibits only show birds, says Bear.

Nineteen exhibitors participated this year with a total of 257 bantams, 104 large fowl, and 23 waterfowl. The waterfowl all belonged to Behney and Miller.

With few exceptions, all entrants walked away with a first place ribbon in one or more variety divisions.

Those exhibiting were: Gerald and Ray Good, Ephrata; H. Randall Leinback, Ephrata; Paul S. Eitner, Lititz; Clarence Minnich, Kutztown; Minnich Brothers, Kutztown; Paul Jacobs, Bloomsburg; David Knisely, Felton; Ammon Shelley, Manheim; Ray Baker, Manheim; John Mink, Ephrata; Melvin Bollinger, Lititz; Forrest Douglass, York; Randy Bucher, Hopeland; Kerry Boyd, Elmer Boyd, and Wilma Boyd, Lititz.



Use of mercury compounds extended

ANNAPOLIS, Md Maryland farmers and other users of seed are being advised by the Maryland Department of Agriculture that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has recently reached an agreement with seed companies that will have the effect of temporarily extending the manufacture and use of mercury compounds as seed disinfectants and fungicides

The action is seen temporarily abating a major problem affecting farmers, who have been faced with a lack of proven and effective subsutute chemicals for seed treatment Such treatment is essential in preserving seed stocks and protecting them from rot and insects

A February, 1976 EPA cancellation order would have stopped treatment of wheat, oats, and other seeds with mercury-based chemicals Now, by terms of an agreement between EPA and the seed producers, the use of such pesticides will not be phased out until August 31, 1978. However, a ceiling of about 50,000 pounds of the pesticides over the next two years has been imposed. But it is presumed that this amount will be sufficient to allow for seed treatment for the next three planting seasons.

Had the original EPA order prevailed, seed for this fall's planting could not have been treated with the mercury compounds. Farmers have complained that substitute pesticides have failed to provide effective protection.

EPA has also reinstated the use of mercury-based pesticides to control winter turfgrass diseases, but with restrictions.

Scores chase greased pig

EPHRATA What could possibly possess a person to chase a greased pig around an arena on a chilly September night?

I don't know answered Daryl Keith the first place winner in the 12 15 year old age bracket of the greased pig chase held at the Ephrata Fair on Tuesday evening

My mom wanted me to try it," said the top place winner in the 7 11 year old age bracket, Gary Moore

"It's fun to see how good you can do it," was another reply

But, perhaps the best answer to the question came from a spectator

"If you saw a $50 bill flying down the street, wouldn't you chase after it? he questioned, referring to the fact that the majority of the top winners to walk away with a hog would sell it for the $50 profit

Almost anybody would chase after the money and many youths and adults chased after the pig also on Tuesday night

A popular event this sixth annual pig chase drew a crowd of hundreds Before the greased pig event began however, a rooster chase was held

The winner from that particular chase was Larry Buehler, age 6, the son of Mr and Mrs Robert Buehler, 229 Lincoln Ave , Ephrata

Larry was quite excited about capturing his prize and taking it home, but his parents were a bit perplexed

"We don't know what he'll do with it now that he has it," they remarked Larry doesn't live on a farm

That was the case for most of the winners of the greased pigs, also

Gary Moore, 10, the son of Mr. and Mrs Roger Moore, [illegible] 4th St Denver who caught and won a 35 pound pig in the same predicament as the rooster winner He doesn't live on a farm, either This was his first year for trying to catch the pig, and he said he really enjoyed catching it and getting greasy

Daryl Keith, 15, who won in the age 12 - 15 year old bracket, is also a non-farmer He lives in Ephrata and is the son of Doris and Donald Keith

The top place winner for 16-year-old-and-over was Paul Lowmiller, 22, of Stevens R1

The second and third place winners in these classes were Matt Klick, son of Mr and Mrs Donald Klick, 1361 Lincoln Hights Ave., Ephrata, for the rooster chase; Barry Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A Martin, East Earl R1, for greased pig chasing, age bracket [illegible] 11 Dennis Thompson and Dean Hess, for age 12 15 and Randy Shrom, Richard Good, and Rick Leid, for the 16 years and over class in greased pig chasing

The object of the pig chase was to catch the animal and carry it over to the judge's stand The lightweight classes chased after 34 - 35 pound pigs, the medium-weight classes, 64-66 pounders, and the heavyweight, 115 to 125 pounders

There were several different heats for each age bracket, and the two or three contenders who won the different heats were pitted against each other for the top placing The person to catch the pig in the final, championship heat in each class won the pig and a trophy. The second place winner received a gift certificate.

Packer bonding proposed

WASHINGTON, D.C. - A regulation to provide for the bonding of meat packers under the Packers and Stockyards Act has been proposed, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced last week.

USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration said that the proposal is intended to establish guidelines for bonding of packers as authorized under amendments to the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act adopted by Congress and signed by President Ford on Sept. 13.

The proposal requires packers with annual purchases in excess of $500,000 worth of livestock to provide a surety bond equal to an average of two days' purchases of livestock, with a minimum bond of $10,000.

For example, a packer that purchases $100,000 worth of livestock per day, based on its purchases during the previous 12 months, would be required to post a bond of $200,000. A bond equivalent may be filed in lieu of a commercial surety bond under certain specific conditions.

The bond of a packer purchasing livestock as a successor in business to a packer formerly subject to the P&S Act shall be no less than that required of the prior packer, unless otherwise determined by USDA.

USDA said that the need for packer bonding was brought about by changing conditions in the livestock marketing and packing industries.

When the P&S Act was passed in 1921, well over 80 per cent of all livestock was sold through large terminal markets, and the Act provided for close supervision of transactions at these markets. During the decades following World War II, the basic pattern of livestock marketing changed drastically, with packers purchasing an increasing amount of their slaughter supply at its source. More than 80 per cent of all slaughter livestock is now purchased by packers directly from the producers or from custom feedlots.

These changes have resulted in increased exposure of livestock producers to the risk of loss. Between 1958 and August, 1976, 174 packers failed in business. The largest of these was American Beef Packers, Omaha, Neb., which filed for bankruptcy in January, 1975, owing sellers in 13 states for more than $20 million worth of livestock purchases at the time of bankruptcy.

This proposed amendment to the regulations will incorporate packers into those sections of the regulations requiring bonds for market agencies and dealers. No change is proposed for the bonds of market agencies and dealers.

Any person who wishes to submit written data, views, or arguments concerning the proposal may do so by filing two copies with the Hearing Clerk, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, no later than Nov. 15. Submitted material will be available for study in Room 112-A, USDA Administration building.

Copies of the proposed amendments may be obtained from the Information Office, Packers and Stockyards Administration, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

More than 1700 dairy animals were in the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg this week.

ANTI-POLLUTION PRODUCTS

ORGANIC FERTILIZER is coming into prominence fast because of necessity. Without it there is too many bugs, blights, soil compaction and bad effects of poisonous sprays in the consumer including your livestock. Organic farmers with many older and newer products have more nutritious crops at less overall cost.

A natural mineral with enzymes and amino acids, mined in Oregon is both a terrific soil balancer and excellent livestock feed. A very little manure or nitrogen with it works wonders for big healthy crops. Great for healthy livestock and poultry-cage fatigue, mortality, vent picking, (no debeaking needed) swine diseases (no medication needed), afterbirth retention, etc. Saves about 15 percent to 30 percent on feed consumption, no kidding.

A new stabilized enzyme sprayed on the soil greatly and quickly improves poor soil, clay and wet soggy soils which bake later. Dries up swamps, yet makes soil hold moisture; a miracle but so is nature. Dealers wanted for above products.

Electronic seed treatment is also a crop improver, especially roots, protein, feed value. Done at Edgar M. Martin's farm near New Holland. Phone 717-354-9917 for appointment.

Lactobase and Agriserum are excellent and proves seed treatments for big roots, more nutrition and protein in crops, soil improvement. Multiply precious soil life and earthworms fast at very little cost.

With only Lactobase and Agriserum and trace minerals as fertilizer for 5 years, I got from 10 acres, over 600 bushels Triticale, a cross between wheat and rye. I cleaned it and sell for $6.00 a bushel. A vigorous grower, tall straw and extra high protein for livestock feed.

Organic produce companies are co-operating for a large Organic produce buying center possibly in New Holland next year. To qualify, keep the chemicals off the land and the children on the land where they belong and not take away jobs from town people. You can raise high quality with my products especially if applied earlier than planting time.

Siegfried is star farmer of North Atlantic region

Dale G Siegfried

By JUDY MITCHELL
Berks County Reporter

MERTZTOWN - Twenty-year-old Dale G. Siegfried, a 1975 graduate of Kutztown Area High School, traveled to Springfield, Mass. last weekend to compete in a 15-state contest where he won the title of Star Farmer of the North Atlantic Region of the FFA Association This marked the second consecutive year that a member of the Kutztown Chapter of the FFA has represented Pennsylvania in that contest.

Siegfried was named Keystone Star Farmer at the Pa FFA Association convention in Harrisburg this past January and completed his elegibility for the regional competiton by submission of a hefty application detailing his farming practices and agriculture related activities

Siegfried resides with his parents, Mr and Mrs Paul J Siegfried, at Mertztown R2, where he farms approximately 178 acres of land, producing a variety of crops including a number of grains, potatoes, corn, and soybeans In addition to his crop production, Siegfried feeds approximately 15 head of steers and expects to fatten more than 160 swine by the end of this year.

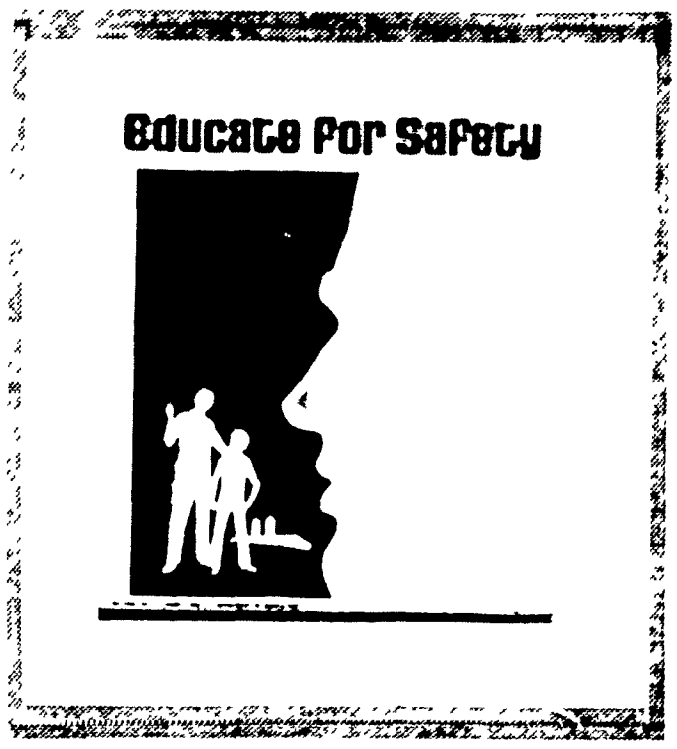
An active member of the FFA since 1971, Siegfried has held several offices and headed various committees with the Berks County FFA, holds the FFA degrees of Greenhand, Chapter Farmer, and Berks County Farmer, and earned the county gold medal for record keeping in 1976

Siegfried's dedication to agriculture was also recognized this past Spring when he was named the Outstanding FFA Boy in Berks County by the Agricultural and Horticultural Association of Berks County, an honor formalized at the annual Reading Fair awards banquet

A participant in local and state fairs for a number of years, Siegfried has distinguished himself in the past with his dairy and swine entries and captured high honors at Reading and Kutztown this year in various grain categories.

Siegfried is a member of the New Jerusalem United Church of Christ and belongs to a number of associations including the Oley Valley Fair, Yorkshire Club, Holstein Friesian Association, Kutztown Grange, and the All-Terrain Vehicle Club

Siegfried's parents and Kutztown agriculture instructor, Ben Newcomer, traveled with him to Springfield where the Keystone Star Farmer and the 14 representatives from other states were interviewed by a committee of ag executives to determine the Star Farmer of the 1976 Northeastern Expo Siegfried was honored at a concluding banquet on Saturday evening



Park City promotion set

LANCASTER - The Women's Committee of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association held two meetings recently to go over the final plans for the public relations project the organization will be hosting at Park City shopping mall, here. The group will tell the "farmers' story to the consumer" the week of October 18 - 23. The Lancaster County Farmers' Association will utilize the entire mall, and every aspect of the business of farming will be told.

Many women will be manning the various displays with some demonstrating crafts each day. The Grand Square, a professional square dancing group, will perform on Oct. 21, and Steve Brubaker, a magician and ventriloquist, will have special shows for the children on October 22 and 23.

The dairy committee will have the county and state dairy princesses at its display along with Geraldine, a full-scale model cow. A live cow and calf will also be featured every day, and a milking contest is planned. A decorated milk can will be given away on Saturday night. Butter-making will also be demonstrated.

The poultry committee will show easy ways to make omlets, and Mr. Rooster will strut through the mall to talk to the children.

The beef committee will give demonstrations on the proper way to prepare various cuts of beef and will show where each cut of the meat comes form.

Continuous slide presentations will be presented all week as will be displays to make the public more aware of what farming involves, down to showing the damage a careless toss of a can or bottle in the field can do.

The Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Raymond Kerstetter, will appear for a tour on October 19, at which time he will be available for interviews.

The committee in charge of the project is made up of Ruth Shertzer, Shirley Garner, Grace Bixler, Helen Wivell, and Earl Newcomer, president of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association.

KERB® GIVES TOP CONTROL OF QUACKGRASS AND CHICKWEED ALONG WITH OTHER GRASSES AND WEEDS IN ALFALFA

Quackgrass, and other perennial and annual grasses like bluegrass, ryegrass, cheatgrass, and wild oats, along with weeds like chickweed and others need no longer lower the quality of your alfalfa hay. A fall or winter application of KERB herbicide from Rohm and Haas Company controls the 15 most common grasses and weeds that rob your forage crop of water and nutrients and deprive it of growing room. Stands can stay productive and profitable longer and produce higher protein, more digestible hay for feeding to dairy or beef animals.

Hay buyers, sellers, and those who feed their own, all know the dollar value of the superior quality hay, which weed control can help produce.

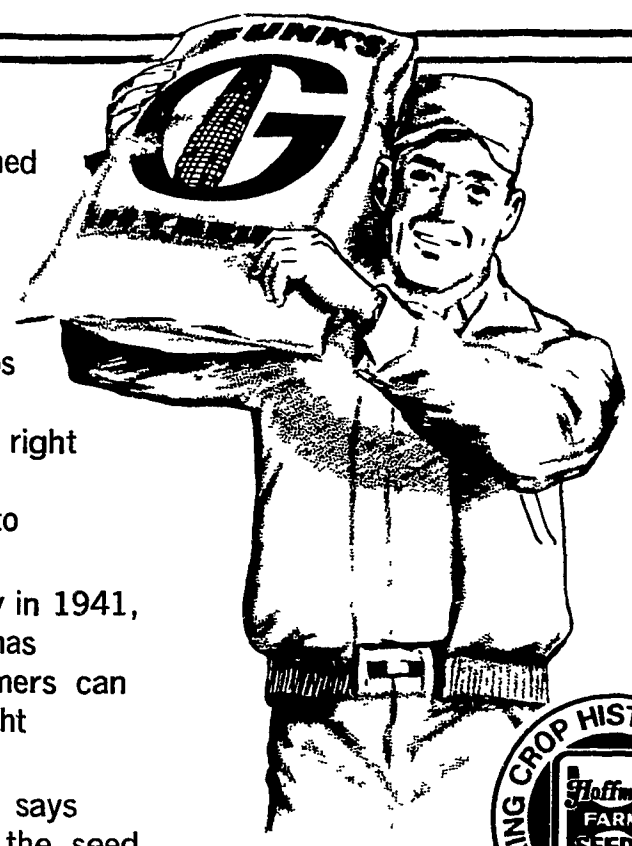
HOFFMAN SALUTES LESTER ERB

Lester Erb (left) holds the distinguished service Award presented to him by Ivan D. Kaufman, sales manager of Hoffman Seeds, Inc., Landisville, Pa. The presentation commemorated Mr. Erb's achievements as a sales and service representative for Hoffman customers in the Lancaster area. The award also carried with it an all-expense-paid trip to the headquarters of Funk's G-Hybrids in Illinois where he will have a first-hand opportunity to examine the many research programs being conducted by Funk's, and also observe the seed production fields at Hoffman's two Illinois plants.



At Hoffman Seeds, we're proud to present Lester Erb, of Elizabethtown, Pa., with our Distinguished Service Award — the highest honor we can confer.

Out of the more than 500 Hoffman sales and service representatives in seven states, Mr. Erb's accomplishments have been outstanding. The award does much more than recognize his close relationships with his Hoffman customers. It also symbolizes the assistance he has given them in the selecting of the right varieties for their farms . . . counselling on new crop management techniques . . . and all-around assistance to make their efforts more rewarding.

Lester Erb began selling seeds in Lebanon County in 1941, following in his father's footsteps. For 35 years he has dedicated his efforts to the task. Many of his customers can recall that their parents and even grandparents, bought Hoffman Seeds through Lester Erb and his father.

"Always try to work to the farmer's interest," says Lester Erb, "just as though you were going to plant the seed on your own farm."

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

EXPLANATION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW MUELLER "FRE-HEATER™" FOR THE DAIRY FARM

Bulk milk coolers on modern dairy farms remove heat from the milk promptly after it is produced To accomplish this requires refrigeration machines and they are generally of the air-cooled type Air-cooled condensing units literally "throw away" this valuable heat

On these same farms, large amounts of hot water are needed for "prepping" the cows, washing the milk cooler, the pipeline milker, other equipment, and the milking parlor itself It is also advantageous to heat the cows' drinking water in winter

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to the storage tank

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping' temperature water

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system . . and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser

Three things which frequently reduce the efficiency are

1 Poor air circulation and recirculation
2 Fan motor failures
3 Dirty or clogged condenser fins

Air-cooled condensing units are generally installed out of doors in order to assure adequate air supply to the condenser This exposes the compressor to extreme ambient temperatures Starting problems and compressor failures have resulted and air-cooled condenser units are always noisy

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no fans to generate noise
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus

. . . the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

Save Energy and get FREE HOT WATER...

Cattlemen warned against waiving prompt pay rights

DENVER (AP) Cattlemen marketing slaughter livestock were recently warned against waiving their prompt payment and trust provision rights under the new amendments to the Packers and Stockyards Act

The advice came from Richard A McDougal first vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Assn., and president of Cattle Fax the market analysis service sponsored by ANCA His comments followed President Ford's signing the prompt and assured payment amendments into law on Sept 13

Two of the principal provisions of the new measure are (1) payment by packers by check or wire transfer, no later than the close of the business day following the transfer of possession, and (2) a trust provision which directs, in case of packer bankruptcy that livestock meat accounts receivable, and proceeds from sale of meat be held in trust for the benefit of unpaid cash sellers of livestock Both of these provisions went into effect immediately

Some packers may ask livestock sellers to sign waivers saying that packers may pay by some other method, such as mailing a check a few days after the sale McDougal said

However when a cattleman waives his right to prompt payment as specified by the law he also waives his rights under the trust provision Therefore if a packer were to go bankrupt, the producer who signed a waiver would simply not have any way to obtain payment out of the funds specifically set aside under the trust provision for his protection

We strongly advise cattlemen to market their cattle under provisions of the new law and not sign any waivers which circumvent the intent of the law

In addition to the prompt pay and trust provisions the new amendments include (1) packer bonding equivalent to two days purchases of slaughter livestock and (2) injunctive authority for the Secretary of Agriculture in order to head off financial injury to other parties by a financially troubled packer

The packer bonding requirement will not go into effect until new regulations are finalized possibly three to four months from now Other provisions are effective immediately

The legislation was prompted by packer bankruptcies notably the American Beef Packers case and losses to cattlemen who were not paid for cattle they delivered Such losses in 1975 amounted to some $25 million Since 1968, the total loss has been almost $50 million

Yoder attends meeting

DENVER - Darwin Yoder, Denver, a local representative of American Breeders Service, attended a regional conference this month at State College

Forty-five representatives from Pennsylvania heard speakers from the central office located in DeForest, Wis, discuss the bulls in present use and the marketing programs associated with development of business in the northeastern states

Dr Robert E Walton, president of American Breeders Service, a division of the W R Grace and Co, spoke on the significance of the company's progeny test programs

Other portions of the conference included a discussion of the acquisition of new bulls and the showing of slides of the bulls now entering service The importance of computers in improving the genetic ability to breed better cattle was another topic for discussion

Zero Concord
TWIN VACUUM PIPELINE
MILKING SYSTEM
WITH COW MONITOR
It's a combination of a new, revolutionary pipeline milking machine and the ZERO Completely-Automated Vacuum Bulk Milk Cooler.

The safe stable vacuum is made possible by a patented scientific principle TWIN VACUUM whereby one vacuum milks the cows and a different vacuum moves the milk through a separate pipeline into the bulk tank In addition — thanks to ZERO's patented SPATTER SPRAY Automatic Washer and new improved high capacity transparent milker unit — you have built in 'push button visible self cleaning and sanitizing of the entire system — without disassembling And there are many other advantages

Corn-soy: the ideal source of amino acids

Feed the Vigortone corn-soy way

For some time now, universities and top nutritionists have agreed that a corn-soy ration provides the ideal level and balance of amino acids for growing and finishing swine. In fact, one leading nutritionist recently concluded: "There is no single ingredient or group of ingredients that will economically substitute for soybean meal in swine rations."

Corn-soy rations, like all swine rations, must be fortified with the proper levels of major minerals, trace minerals, vitamins and other ingredients vital to the health and growth of the pig. This is where Vigortone pre-mixes come in.

Vigortone pre-mixes for proper nutrition

Seldom will any feed program outperform a Vigortone fortified corn-soy ration. The reasons are simple. In addition to providing the proper balance of all 10 essential amino acids, you also assure adequate levels of other nutrients — even when poor quality grain is fed.

Unlike commercial programs, the ration is not robbed of proper nutrition when you cut back on protein (amino acids), because your major minerals, trace minerals, vitamins and other ingredients are separate.

Visit with your Vigortone Serviceman

If you'd like to learn more about corn-soy rations and how to fortify them, talk to your Vigortone serviceman soon. You'll learn why more pork producers are feeding Vigortone — especially now.

The All-American Milking Shorthorn Show was judged by C Fred Forman, Ames, Iowa.

YORK - Sam Yoder's Milking Shorthorns just about made a clean sweep of things here at the York Fair last week during the Open Milking Shorthorn Show "Pinesedge Farm," owned by the Yoders of Shoemakersville, showed all the champions as well as the reserve champions of the breed and won all but two classes for individual and group competition

Jeff and Bret Ritter spoiled the Pinesedge Farm sweep by winning the senior calf class, while James Young did likewise by steering his aged cow to first place in the 5-year old dry cow category

The Yoder family has approximately 100 head of Milking Shorthorns at their Berks County farm and has acquired national recognition through them. Over the years they have had the grand champion bull twice, the grand champion cow once, and premier breeder and exhibitor several years at the national show

Spray applicators, beekeepers meet

By SALLY BAIR

LEBANON Commercial applicators of agricultural sprays and Walter E. Bucks, president of the Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association, met recently for what Bucks described as a first time meeting, and agreed to work together to protect honeybees in the coming year

According to Bucks, a Lebanon County beekeeper, the problem for the honeybees arises during the alfalfa spraying when the bees are after the first bloom of the year Bees die either directly from the spray or from residues over a period of a few days Bucks said he lost "gallons" of bees last year from spraying

He explained that if given notice, beekeepers can contain their bees by covering the hives with wet burlap, simulating rain This will save most of the bees He added that experimentation is being done with smoking the bees with ammonium nitrate which puts the bees to sleep and causes a memory lapse It takes several days for the hive to get reorganized

The custom sprayers present offered to do everything possible to work with the beekeepers in order to curtail losses, including standing some expense of their own as far as re-routing trucks if necessary

Jack Reed, Agway, Inc, said that the monumental problem between applicators and beekeepers is how to contact the person with control over the hives He suggested that the beekeepers arrange to have a central telephone manned from dawn to dusk during the problem period so that applicators will be able to make an initial contact

Mrs Esther Rauch, Lebanon County ASCS, said, We are willing to do anything we possibly can, but the beekeepers will have to get together to help ' At one point it was suggested that the ASCS office make the calls to the beekeepers, but after discussion this alternative was found to be impractical because of the large number of phone calls which would have to be made at times the office is closed

Al Trexler, executive assistant, Berks County Conservation District, is presently making a master map for Berks County showing beehive locations This map will be distributed to commercial spray applicators In Lebanon County, the work is being coordinated by ASCS and the map will be kept at Agway

Trexler proposed that a letter be sent to all beekeepers involved, advising them of the plan and asking them if they wish to cooperate. If they agree, they will be included on the maps.

Bucks pointed out that a good colony, consisting of about 15,000 housekeepers and 50-80,000 workers, will give a surplus of honey of 60 pounds but is also responsible for producing 80 tons of fruits and vegetables So even though the hive can be full again by fall after a devastation by spray, the crop has been lost as well as the pollination, and, therefore, fruits and vegetables

It was noted that the problem is not critical each year depending upon the timing of the growth of yellow rocket and the appearance of weevil in the alfalfa

Also represented at the meeting was Reading Bone Fertilizer commercial applicators, and the Lebanon County Agricultural Extension Service

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sechrist, buyers for Hatfield Packing Company of Philadelphia, are shown with the grand champion market hog they purchased at the first annual FFA market hog sale held last week at the York Fair.

First hog sale held

YORK - The first FFA hog sale for York County was held here last Friday night at the York Fair. Forty-six hogs were sold, bringing an average of $46.32 per hundredweight.

Selling the top animal was Leon Crowl of Airville, whose purebred Duroc commanded a price of $1.25 per pound from the Hatfield Packing Company. Bidding for the Company was done by Mille Sechrist, wife of York County auctioneer and livestock market operator, Robert Sechrist. Crowl is a member of the Red Lion FFA Chapter.

Another Red Lion youth, Wayne Bankert, bagged the second highest price offered at the sale. His spotted Poland China fetched 70 cents per pound. Hatfield again did the buying, with Mrs. Sechrist doing the bidding.

MILK IS A NATURAL

Dairy prices announced

NEW YORK N Y A uniform price of $10 22 per hundredweight (4 6 5 quarts) for August milk deliveries to pool handlers under the New York New Jersey marketing orders was announced last week by Thomas A Wilson, market administrator The uniform price was $9 63 in July 1976 and $9 00 in August 1975

The butterfat differential was 12 2 cents for each tenth of a pound of butterfat above or below 3 5 per cent The seasonal incentive fund (Louisville Plan) returned $2,857,270 33 to the August 1976 pool This added $ 377 per hundredweight to producer prices

Receipts from dairy producers totaled 757,233,283 pounds, 0 8 per cent or 5,730,914 pounds more than in August 1975, Wilson reported Handlers utilized 370,332,008 pounds of these receipts or 48 9 per cent for fluid milk products (Class I) In August 1975 the Class I utilization percentage was 50 2 For August 1976, handlers paid $10 72 for Class I milk compared with $9 51 a year ago

Wilson stated that receipts on bulk tank units were 734,934,467 pounds, up 13,955,684 pounds He added that this was 97 1 per cent of the pool, compared to 95 9 per cent a year ago

A total of 382,847,496 pounds, or 52 1 per cent, of tank milk was used as Class II and was subject to the transportation credit which amounted to $382,867 50

Producers with tank milk numbered 18,244, a decrease of 2 2 per cent The administrator said that the total number of producers in the pool was 19,319, a loss of 4 6 per cent Average daily deliveries per producer rose 66 pounds to 1,264 pounds

The gross value to dairy farmers of August milk deliveries was $78,022,191 22 Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer

All prices quoted are for milk of 3 5 per cent butterfat received within the 201 210 mile zone from New York City

100 million volts are frightful

By DIETER KRIEG

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh article in a continuing series of stories on the weather — one of the most awesome and vital forces on Earth.

Ever since man first looked into the sky and saw a lightning bolt crash through the forest, he has been awed by its power and ability to destroy

Today we look at lightning and thunder through scientific eyes, but generations before us associated the rumble and flash of fire with "the gods" In either case, lightning has always been something which we respect and for good reason

It is estimated that lightning kills about 150 persons per year, injures an additional 250, and causes property losses in excess of $100 million Few farmers have not felt the destruction that lightning can produce in just a flash Barns have been ignited, cattle have been killed, and majestic trees have been left scattered across pretty landscaped lawns

Destructive and frightening as lightning is, there is an expression some people use which would dare "the gods" to strike them with that tongue of fire "May lightning strike me down " they say, fully realizing that the chances of it happening are pretty slim. And that they are

But the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, (NOAA), has calculated that some 1800 thunderstorms are in progress over the Earth's surface at any given moment, and that lightning strikes the Earth 100 times each second Thus, lightning has become the killer and destroyer of more lives and property than tornadoes and hurricanes

NOAA, a branch of the U.S. Commerce Department, is studying lightning intensively By using sophisticated equipment on land and sea, and in the air, scientists are attempting to learn what causes thunderstorms and what might be done to lessen their killer attitudes

So far no completely acceptable theory on the cause of lightning has been forwarded A brochure on the subject, published by the Department of Commerce says

Lightning is a secondary effect of electrification within a thunderstorm cloud system Updrafts of warm, moist air rising into cold air can cause small cumulus clouds to grow into the large cumulonimbus cloud systems we associate with thunderstorms These turbulent cloud systems tower above their companions, and dominate the atmospheric circulation and electrical field over a wide area The transition from a small cloud to a turbulent, electrified giant can occur in as little as 30 minutes

As a thunderstorm cumulonimbus develops, interactions of charged particles, external and internal electrical fields, and complex energy exchanges produce a large electrical field within the cloud It is believed that electrical charge is important to formation of raindrops and ice crystals, and that thunderstorm electrification closely follows precipitation

The distribution of electricity in a thunderstorm cloud is usually a concentration of positive charge in the frozen upper layers, and a large negative charge around a positive area in the lower portions of the cloud

The earth is normally negatively charged with respect to the atmosphere As the thunderstorm passes over the ground, the negative charge in the base of the cloud induces a positive charge on the ground below and several miles around the storm The ground charge follows the storm like an electrical shadow, growing stronger as the negative cloud charge increases The attraction between positive and negative charges makes the positive ground current flow up buildings, trees, and other elevated objects in an effort to establish a flow of current But air, which is a poor conductor of electricity, insulates the cloud and ground charges, preventing a flow of current until large electrical charges are built up "

A point is eventually reached when the electrical charges can no longer be contained. Then lightning strikes with electrical power which can be as high as 100 million volts. Just how that happens, and why we hear thunder will be the subject of next week's "Weather Report."

Cattle increased

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Cattle and calves on feed Sept. 1 for slaughter market in the seven states preparing monthly estimates totaled 6,432,000 head, up eight per cent from last year's record low number for Sept. 1 but still six per cent less than the same date in 1974, according to the Crop Reporting Board. The number on feed Sept. 1 was above last year in five of the seven states.

August placements of cattle and calves on feed in the seven states totaled 1,404,000, 10 per cent more than last year and 16 per cent above the same month in 1974. Placements were above last year in six of the seven states.

Fed cattle marketed during August totaled 1,586,000, 31 per cent more than 1975 and 22 per cent more than two years ago. Marketings were above August 1975 in all States except Arizona which was unchanged.

Other disappearance during August totaled 52,000, compared with 43,000 in the same month a year ago.

Dressed in colonial garb and putting on an old fashioned picnic, featuring pork recipes, Richard Luckenbaugh was chosen as the 1976 Pork Cookout King for York County. He and his family put up the above display, complete with a cake which looked like a pig. The Luckenbaughs have a 900 acre hog and grain farm near Spring Grove. The chef's winning recipe was an old fashioned pork barbecue, samples of which were served to passersby. As winner, Luckenbaugh will be eligible for state-wide competition later this year.

Your Life Insurance

You should review your life insurance protection at least once every two years. Always take a look at your coverages when there is some change in your family or living situation — like the birth of a child or a significant change in income. Also be sure that the beneficiary named in your policy is the right one.

Most policies provide that the money from your life insurance — if your beneficiary dies before you do — would go into your estate and would be distributed according to your will if you have one or through state intestate law if you don't. You can avoid this by naming a contingent beneficiary in your policy to receive the money in case your primary beneficiary dies first. Be certain to review your beneficiary arrangements if your primary beneficiary does die.

You may name as many beneficiaries in your life insurance policy as you wish. You can specify how you want the proceeds of the policy divided among them.

Dairy co-op, consumers take first step

SOUTHAMPTON Inter State Milk Producers Cooperative took an unprecendented step among dairy cooperatives last week by holding a consumer information forum for the leaders of area consumer organizations

The day long forum, held at Philadelphia's Marriott Motor Hotel, gave the leaders of about 20 consumer organizations the opportunity of meeting with top dairy officials from both private and government sectors

Completing the cross-section of citizens represented were four Pennsylvania dairy farm families plus Inter-State's president who is also a New Jersey dairy farmer

Inter-State's first formal attempt at bridging the understanding gap between consumers and the dairy industry was an apparent terrific success, noted Inter-State's James H Summer, coordinator of the forum

"All those in attendance said they found the program extremely beneficial," said Sumner. "In fact, many have already inquired about additional such programs."

The forum, which was kept informal, had something for everyone. For some, it was learning how prices are set, and others it was how to store milk for longer periods. Still others had their questions answered regarding problems of buying milk in low-income areas of the city.

"It was gratifying to discover sincere concern among these people toward preserving the family farm, "Sumner said. "Several asked about the number of farmers going out of business. They were also sympathetic and understanding about rising production costs which each year force many farmers out of farming".

"We find ourselves buying retail and selling wholesale," said Charles Rohrer, a dairy farmer from Paradise, Pa. He noted there is no other business which similarly positions owners.

Rohrer also pointed out that some farmers are inefficient and have no alternative but to "find the going too tough to stay in business." Most farmers, he noted, though, have been forced into becoming efficient business managers. Mrs. Rohrer, who described herself as a former "city girl from Philadelphia also participated

Other farmers participating included Mr and Mrs Paul King Cochranville, and Mr and Mrs John Barley Millersville, and Mrs Rhelda Rover, Lancaster

Lester C Jones, Inter State's president and a Medford, N J dairy farmer, welcomed the gathering of consumer representatives, resource persons and dairy farmers He said he was hopeful the meeting can serve as the first step in what he hopes will soon become "a mutually beneficial relationship"

At the onset of the program, Boyd C Gartley, director of member and public relations, explained Inter-State's role in the marketing of milk He was followed by Joseph D Shine, Federal Order No 4 market administrator, and Edward Vees, Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB), who explained the roles of the federal milk order system and the PMMB

Putting the forum into perspective, Robert J. Beiter, Department of Agriculture and Resource Economics, University of Maryland, noted that many of the consumer representatives attending were active in local consumer co-ops and buying clubs.

"If consumer groups can perform some of the marketing functions or services, there is a possibility of reducing the cost of food and fiber," noted Beiter in response to questions of how to obtain 'cheap food.' If you insist upon shopping in the attractive, well-lit supermarkets with a wide variety of products and brands, I don't believe consumer co-ops will successfully compete.

"If the consumer groups are in a position to perform some of the marketing functions and can depend upon volunteers - then I believe some savings can be realized," Beiter continued.

Those attending the session described it as both productive and informative. They requested a continuing program for both themselves and other consumer groups not in attendance. Those at last week's program included representatives from the following organizations: New Jersey Home Economics Association, Opportunities Industrialization Center Inc, Community Food and Nutrition Program Archdiocese of Philadelphia Better Business Bureau of Eastern Pa Montgomery County Department of Consumer Affairs, International Ladies Garment Workers Union Delaware County Consumer Affairs Foodarama Supermarkets

Other resource persons attending included Phyllis D Wolfe, New Jersey Department of Agriculture C B Sprague, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Edison W Osborne, Pa Bureau of Markets, Terry Heller, Dairy Council, Inc, Dan Wettlin, Jr, Milk Distribution Association of the Philadelphia Area, Inc

Inter-State has 3,000 dairy farmers as members residing in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey and markets over 1½ billion lbs of milk annually

ED ESHLEMAN'S WASHINGTON REPORT

This column consists of a press release on the Route 30 situation from Congressman Bud Shuster of Pennsylvania

News Release
from
Congressman Bud Shuster
(9th District, Pa.)

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

WASHINGTON - Pennsylvania Congressman Bud Shuster blasted Shapp Administration officials for using a Federal project in his district as an example of 100 percent Federal financing which could be used to build a new Route 30 east of Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Calling the comparison a "gross distortion," Shuster said the project in his district was approved because the Federal Raystown Dam project produced dramatic changes in population and traffic patterns that demanded immediate correction. "Because of the adjacent Federal project, with its tremendous impact on the surrounding area, the Congress concluded that the Federal Government was responsible for insuring the safety of the local residents and motorists," he said. "There is absolutely no similarity between the project in my district and the Route 30 situation."

Shuster, who is Ranking Minority Member of the House Surface Transportation Subcommittee and newly-appointed member of the National Transportation Policy Study Commission, personally inspected the Route 30 area earlier this summer when he was in Lancaster for a speaking engagement. He said that delays were the result of "inaction on the part of the state, and not due to the lack of federal funds."

Shuster explained that Route 30 is a Federal-Aid Primary highway and qualifies for 70 percent federal funding. Pennsylvania will receive approximately $260 million in Federal highway funds during the next fiscal year," he said, and all the state has to do is come up with the other 30 percent. Apparently, the state has made the decision to delay this vital project for reasons that are totally unclear."

Shuster also labelled recent criticism of Rep. Ed Eshleman for not obtaining Federal funds as "unfair." "Ed Eshleman and I have conferred on this project numerous times," Shuster stated, "and he has been a staunch supporter of the Federal-Aid Highway Program to assure that Federal funds are available for the project. Well, the Federal funds are there, the rest is up to the state."

The 9th District legislator said that any further delays on making lifesaving improvements on Route 30 would constitute "serious neglect" and the Shapp Administration must bear full responsibility for the consequences.

Shuster co-authored the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976 which extended the Federal highway program through Fiscal Year 1978. He suggested that recent statements by Shapp officials "demonstrate a fundamental lack of understanding of this important Federal-state cooperative program. They would do well to check their facts before flying off the handle with blatantly political mis-statements."

Congressman Shuster, having won both major-party nominations for Congress in the Spring Primary, is running unopposed for a third straight term in the House of Representatives.

Either you've got a system . . . or you haven't

Editor's Note The following article is reprinted from THE EXTRA, a trade publication from Pfizer Genetics, Inc , Olivia, Minn , suppliers of Trojan Seed Corn

By LORAINE WALLACE

For years I've been trying to hame that husband of mine into cleaning his work shop I've even offered my able bodied assistance But it all ran off his back like so much water from a mallard tail feather

One day I picked up a magazine and the headline caught my eye immediately You don't sort through litter to find tools in this farm shop! it stated boldly and dramatically The article went on to mention that in too many farms the area that is called a shop is actually little more than a catch all Clearly the author of that little gem had, at some time or another, been sneaking a peek into Lynn's workshop

There were several pictures accompanying the column and I studied them thoroughly The walls of the shop were paneled, saws all hung in their proper places, graduated according to sizes A complete set of wrenches hung in an orderly row, from the little bitty fellow right up to the granddaddy wrench that requires two hands to manage There was a neat assemblage of hammers, both claw and ball peen None were rusted, bent or sporting broken claws and missing handles

There were screw drivers, pliers, fence stretchers, paint brushes (none petrified) and nuts and bolts in proper and accessible bins . . and labeled!

The work bench proper was cleaned off and a vice was anchored firmly on one end A fluorescent fixture was hung from the ceiling and on one wall was a clock and a thermometer. The floor was so clean it could have been used for a dance hall, and there was room for Lawrence Welk and his entire musical family in one corner.

LYNN I'VE GOT A GREAT IDEA FOR A SYSTEM TO KEEP YOUR TOOL ROOM CLEAN!!
OH REALLY? WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT OUT ON YOUR MESSY (SEWING ROOM??)

"Just look at this!" I exclaimed, shoving the magazine under my husband's nose. "If you would just take a couple of days to clean house, your shop could look just like this one."

"Hmmmmm," he said thoughtfully, reading the article and next thing I knew he was busily reading an article on canary pox in a trade paper

A couple of nights later he heaved a magazine under my nose

If you would just take a couple of days to clean house your sewing room could look just like this one

A nap hot accompanied the article Boxes of sewing supplies were pictured snuggled in neat rows Dozens of different colored spools of thread sat in tidy untangled array and patterns were deftly catalogued none of the contents bulged or spewed out of the tops of their torn envelopes

The sewing machine cabinet was closed and stood waiting for the next sewing project to begin Half finished garments hung from designated hooks in a specially constructed closet and a pegboard held scissors, pin cushions, measuring tapes, tracing wheels and seam rippers

The entire room looked like it had been designed by Cinderella's fairy godmother and maintained by the seven dwarfs Furthermore it didn't appear that anyone would ever dare enter that room with the cloddish idea of messing it up to do any sewing

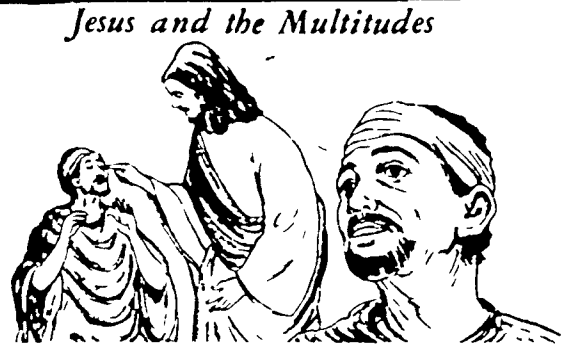
I don't know why but I must always be to seek revenge

Hmmmmm I said thoughtfully scanning it busily and first thing I knew I was back reading an article on snowy owls in the Iowa Birdlife

It may well be Lynn's workshop isn't all that messy, and while it's not exactly a pleasure to the eye of the beholder, he usually manages to find whatever he's seeking with only a minimum amount of scratching and clawing so why should I interfere in matters that really ought not to concern me?

Let's face it either you've got a system or you haven't "

Jesus and the Multitudes



And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee, and went up into a mountain, and sat down there

And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet, and he healed them,

Insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see and they glorified the God of Israel

SLURRY PUMP

LITITZ - A revolutionary liquid manure pump that sucks up thick slurry from animal waste and pumps it to a holding tank 3000 to 4000 feet from the barn is now available to farmers Shenk's Farm Service, 501 E Woods Drive, Lititz, has been named the regional wholesale and retail distributor of the Delta Pump Company's new Slurry Gun

Ray Shenk, owner of the Lancaster County farm service organization said, "Manure handling is one of the worst jobs around the farm We had known about the potential of the Slurry Gun for some time So we were quite pleased when Delta asked us to be their representative "

The principle of the Slurry Gun is based on positive displacement and is achieved by the arrangement of an eccentric rotor shaft housed within a specially molded rubber stator. By rotating the shaft, the void spaces produced by the shape of the rotor and stator are progressively moved forward, creating a vacuum on the suction side The pump continues to suck, pushing the fluid progressively from one void space to the next

Simultaneously, positive pressure is building up on the output side The Slurry Gun is positively self-priming with plain cattle and swine manure minus the urine Poultry manure can also be pumped with the new gun.

Field demonstrations are being planned in the next few weeks and farmers and other interested persons may call Shenk's for information.

CB Cuber

California Pellet Mill Company introduced a revolutionary new roughage cubing machine at Farm Fest '76, in Lake Crystal, Minn The CB Cuber as it is named was in operation at the Farm Fest 76 Show last week and was located on 5th Street at Space 504-506

Of specific interest to farmers is that the CB Cuber will process many by-products into dense, firm 2 inch square cubes The manufacturer states that hay, rice straw, chaff and straw from oats, wheat, bent grass, rye grass, coastal burmuda grass, corn stalks, Baggasse, cotton seed hulls, gin trash and almond hulls and various other products have been successfully handled by the CB Cuber

Many combinations of the above have been mixed with nutritional additives such as molasses or contrates to make a valuable feed out of the otherwise wasted and expensive-to-remove materials.

The CB Cuber which is a complete system that shreds, grinds, meters, mixes with liquids and cubes the otherwise impossible commodities is available in either a PTO powered unit or electric power. Horse power requirements are relatively low. Capacity of course varies with the product being cubed.

California Pellet Mill Co. 1114 E. Wabash Avenue, Crawfordsville, Ind. 47933 (317) 362-2600.

28 HP TRACTOR

Designed especially for light farming and grounds maintenance for estate owners is the new 28 hp International 284 tractor recently introduced by International Harvester.

The low profile 284 is equipped with a four-cylinder, water-cooled engine.

Offering low to the ground stability, the 284 is only 75 inches high, making it suitable for cutting grass under trees and close to bushes on estates.

The 284 has a sliding transmission of eight speeds forward from 0.97 mph to 9.27 mph at 2600 rpm. Maximum ground speed is 10.51 mph and minimum turning radius is 90.6 inches.

A range of tools such as front and rear blades, bucket loaders, trenchers, post hole diggers and many others are available.

A complete line of cultivating equipment is available for the 284. Gang harrows, for example, coming in widths up to 52 inches. Rotary tillers can blend soil and materials in 42-in. wide rows. Moldboard plows, rakes, seeders, spreaders are just a few of the many tools compatible and available for use with the 284.

And for the big pull, a dump-type utility trailer can be hitched to the tractor. With one-ton capacity it can be used to haul tools, earth, feed or seed. Or a larger 2,000 lb. capacity tilt-bed trailer can be used for hauling a Cub Cadet tractor or optional stakes can be added for general hauling.

A one-speed rear PTO, running at 650 rpm has a rated engine speed of 2600 or 540 rpm at 2160.

The 284 has an 8-in. dry disk diaphram type foot clutch and wet disc type hydraulic power brakes as well as an independent hand brake.

The unit has ball screw-type steering. Instrumentation includes warning lights, no charge indicator, oil pressure, water temperature and fuel gauges plus a tachometer. Tail and plow lights as well as a flasher warning light are optional.

Jesus and the Commandments

And behold one came and said unto him Good Master what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life?

And he said unto him Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one that is God but if thou wilt enter into life keep the commandments

He saveth unto him Which? Jesus said Thou shalt do no murder Thou shalt not commit adultery Thou shalt not steal Thou shalt not bear false witness

Honour thy father and thy mother and Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself

48th Senatorial District

FROM THE SENATE SIDE

from Sen Clarence F Manbeck

Two companion bills centering on reform which I have fought for of the Public Utility Commission, are now in final stages of passage in the Pennsylvania State Legislature

The consumer-oriented measures, Senate Bills 1216 and 1217, together comprise a package that is of special concern to all utility customers in the state

They are important because of recent events in which the Public Utility Commission authorized two sister firms, Pennsylvania Electric Company and Metropolitan Edison Company, to recover about $32 million in retroactive rate hikes The retroactivity problem, caused by the PUC's year-long delay in approving a permanent rate, produced a tidal wave of angry protests throughout the regions they serve

I took part in those protests and filed several actions opposing the retroactive rate hikes with the PUC The PUC, however, ruled against the customers and in favor of the utilities.

In response to the outcry we have accelerated work on the utility-reform bills.

I can happily report that the bills which have now emerged from a Senate House conference committee, prohibit the retroactive rate hike

Under present procedures the PUC can award a temporary rate increase to a utility firm Then, over the course of the following 11 months, the commission can grant a permanent and higher rate In such situations, it then allows the companies to recover the difference between the temporary rate and the permanent one that it approves at a later time

The new utility-reform package which we have worked out specifically forbids this practice Under the provisions of the new laws, all utilities, except transportation firms, will file for general rate increases to take effect in 60 days after the date of filing If the commission does not take action on the boost within that 60-day span, the increase is automatically suspended for a period not to exceed seven months. If the PUC has still not handed down an order by the end of the full suspension period of nine months, the rate hike will go into effect. However, the PUC could come up with a final order at a later date and could order refunds of overpayments, plus interest at the prevailing home-mortgage rates.

This is only part of the consumer-protection features that we have built into the measures. Another provision deals with fuel adjustment clauses.

The PUC is required to keep a careful watch over the operations of the fuel-adjustment clauses. An annual audit may be carried out either by PUC personnel or by independent auditors who are knowledgeable in the field. Within five months after the annual audit, the commission must then review the clauses and the amounts collected from them. The PUC is authorized to intervene in cases of overcharges or under-collections.

The new legislation also requires the PUC to monitor contracts between public utilities and affiliated interests such as coal companies This provision is designed to prevent 'sweetheart contracts' between interlocking financial interests

Because the bills greatly increase the range of the PUC's duties and powers, the commission will need more money for operational purposes The commission's budget is derived from an assessment of two-tenths of one percent of the total intrastate operating revenues collected by utility firms The assessment will be increased to three-tenths of one percent, with a provision for a supplemental assessment to initiate the commission's expanded programs

The utility-reform bills will raise the salaries of the five members of the commission The PUC members now draw $24,000 a year, and the commission chairman receives $25,000 These are considered part-time positions, and the commissioners often engage in outside law practices or other forms of employment

Now, however, the commissioners must spend full-time at their duties and are, therefore barred from accepting outside employment On January 1 1977, their salaries will jump to $35,000 a year with a salary of $37,500 for the chairman; one year later the salary levels will be boosted by another $5,000

Other sections of the bill will establish minimum hearing procedures such as those used in courts and on federal levels and they will permit full participation in the proceedings by individual customers and consumer groups

In addition there will be a central bureau to receive consumer complaints and to assure prompt action on these complaints Utilities also will be required to file annual conservation reports to assure that the companies are taking full advantage of new technology

In summary, the PUC will be given the authority and the resources to carry out its expanded responsibilities If it fails, I will be among the first to find out why and to take corrective action

Peanut Butter

Nutritionists say that peanut butter is 26 per cent protein — a higher percentage than found in most cuts of meat or fish — and is rich in Vitamin B phosphorus thiamine and niacin The ancient South American Incas cultivated fields of peanuts and ground the rich oily seeds into a form of peanut butter Utensils for serving the gooey butter have been found in ancient tombs in Peru

ATTENTION DAIRYMEN

Kick off your fall and winter cow feeding program on the "right foot".

Now is the time to adapt your grain ration to your new roughage program in order to reach your winter milk production goal.

- YOU SHOULD -

* Adjust protein to a proper point, but not an excessive amount because protein ingredients are likely to be expensive
* Provide enough T.D.N to enable your fresh cows to peak properly and maintain a high level of production
* Insure adequate fiber intake to maintain good butterfat output.
* Regulate proper Calcium and Phosphorus intake and ratios in your total ration, including roughages, to aid in keeping your herd healthy while maintaining high levels of milk production

The above mentioned items are all on our Dairy Nutrition Programming check list. In addition, we use Brown & Rea and Red Rose products fortified with Carnation Lab Mix to insure adequate Vitamin and Trace Mineral fortification in a ration "tailor made" for your herd and available roughage and grain

If you wish to have an analysis and program recommendation made, please call for an appointment.

Tractor pulling rivals drag racing as sport

By Bonnie Szymanski

It's a lot of fun but more work than I thought it would be," laughed Elwood Funk, a Lititz resident who three years ago talked six friends into investing in a then little known sport - tractor pulling.

Result: the Buck Tractor Pulls, held every Saturday night in the summer, 10 miles south of Lancaster on Route 272.

Funk started going to tractor pulls several years ago because it was a "different" form of spectator sport. He found the pulls exciting and the family atmosphere fun.

Even though there were long waits between pulls because of break-downs and general inefficiency, he explained, he was amazed how the people stayed long into the early morning hours to watch their favorites pull the weight. If a more efficient way could be found to keep the entries moving along smoothly, he thought the popularity of the sport might spread.

The Buck's first year was an economic failure, but it was becoming obvious that the tractor pulls were drawing more and more people each week. Now in its third year, the Buck Tractor Pulls are paying off. Not hundreds, but thousands of people show up each Saturday to watch the huge farm machines puff their way down a 300-foot sod track. A weight attached behind slowly shifts toward the tractor, putting an ever-increasing load on the pulling machine.

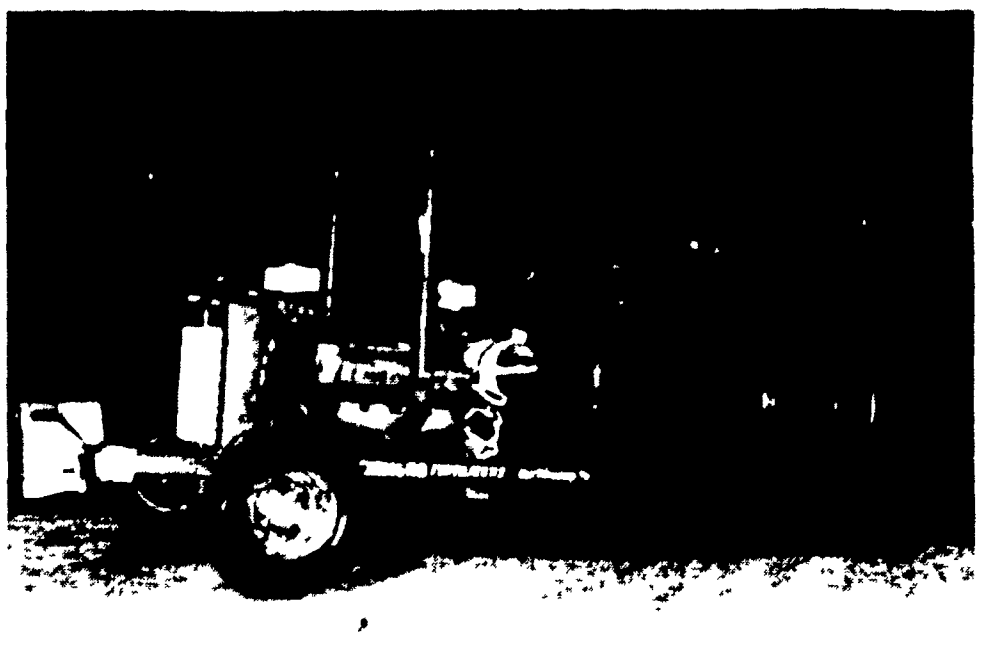
Old Sport

An off-shoot of the old mule and horse pulling contests which, years ago, were mainstays of country fairs, tractor pulls were a logical evolution. Farmers never seemed to stop wanting to pit their horsepower against their neighbors'.

Now, most of the tractors used in competition have never plowed a furrow or driven through a field of fresh mown hay. Pampered creatures, they are fed on water-injected alcohol and run on, not one, but two and sometimes three engines. In fact, some of them have even been enhanced by jet airplane engines. Funk is in the process of building one of these mechanical mutants and already has a 17-cubic-inch jet engine waiting to be transplanted into an agricultural monster able to deliver 1500 horsepower.

The super stocks (tractors with the original engine blocks) and modifieds (ones that look like super-dragsters) are a far cry from the well-used farm tractors that worked all week in the fields. Pulling against other farm tractors, those machines were attached to a weight that became increasingly heavy as men lined up along the track and jumped on as the tractor moved toward the finish line.

The modern way may be less colorful, but it's more efficient with the shifting weight geared to the rear wheels of a sled-trailer contraption. These wheels have 30 different gear ratios to vary the pulling difficulty.



Elwood Funk of Lititz, one of the owners of the Buck Tractor Pulls and a regular "puller," drives his modified tractor down the track during a run at the Buck this summer.

Contests

Trophies are given to the tractors who pull their weights the farthest. Not only the first, second and third place trophy winners receive a substantial purse, but the first eight tractors that place get some of the winnings. In national competitions, the first 15 tractors to place receive prize money.

National championships are run at the Buck twice a year: in the spring and the fall. These pulls draw modifieds and super stocks from as far away as Canada and Florida. This weekend, September 24 and 25, the Fall Nationals will be held Friday at 7 p.m., and Saturday at 1 p.m. and again at 7 p.m.

A special highlight of the October 2, tractor pulls will be a "powder puff" pull featuring female tractor drivers. On October 16, the last pull of the season, the Pull-off Championship will be run.

Most of the tractors in the pull-off will be the ones that have run at the Buck all year. These include tractors from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware.

According to Funk, winning at tractor pulling is 70 percent power and 30 percent driving skill. It's about the same as any driving sport he explained, which might account for the growing popularity for tractor pulling among drag racing fans.

The Buck Tractor Pulls stockholders branched out this year by selling T-shirts bearing the track's new trademark. Designed by Bill Zell of Brunnerville, the logo features a cartoon drawing of a dragster-tractor with its driver hidden behind the huge wheels. Only his hat is seen as it blows off his head.

A totally Lititz product, the shirts were screen-printed by Neil Meisky's Golden Eagle Screen Printing Co., 1003 Brunnerville Road.

Another Lititz man, Bill Bell, Jr., was employed as the official photographer for the tractor pulls at the Buck this summer. Through his association with the Buck Tractor Pulls, Bell has been asked to photograph the national pulls as well.

Despite its rural beginnings, tractor pulling is growing into a sophisticated and popular sport. It would be well worth a few hours investigation for anyone whose interest leans toward watching powerful machines and skillful drivers compete.

See you at the Buck.

Elaborate Funerals

Early American colonists staged elaborate funerals with endless corteges and costly ornaments for mourners. Some rites became so extravagant that they were banned in Boston and elsewhere in the 1700's.

CONSUMER GUIDELINES

Consider Effect

When ordering new drapes for your home, consider their potential effect on your comfort, especially in winter. Drapes that block your warm air register will prevent sufficient heat from entering the room. Each time the heat comes up, the drapes will billow out and dance around, instead of staying in place, while your thermostat keeps "calling" for heat. If there are electric heaters along the outside wall, drapes must be cut to hang about six inches above the heater. Otherwise, there is the risk of charring certain fabrics.

Hog cholera threat reduced

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has lifted its embargo against swine from New Hampshire and modified a similar embargo against Massachusetts, effective Sept. 13, it was announced.

An outbreak of hog cholera in Massachusetts in July prompted Pennsylvania to clamp an embargo on swine from Massachusetts as well as against New Hampshire and Rhode Island because of possible exposure of their herds to the disease.

The embargo against Rhode Island was lifted Aug. 17. "The disease appears to be under control in these New England states and we have had no outbreaks in Pennsylvania," said Kerstetter. "Therefore, we feel it is now safe to remove our embargo against swine from New Hampshire and modify it for Massachusetts."

The modified embargo against swine from Massachusetts provides that.

- No swine of any type from premises under state-federal quarantine in Massachusetts may be moved into Pennsylvania;
- Slaughter-ready swine from the counties of Berkshire, Franklin, Hampshire and Hampden counties in Massachusetts may move through normal slaughter market channels without a permit;
- Slaughter-ready swine from other counties in Massachusetts may move directly from premises of origin or an approved slaughter swine assembly point to an approved slaughtering establishment in Pennsylvania if accompanied by an owner-shipper statement.
- Feeder and breeder swine from Massachusetts may not be consigned to Pennsylvania auctions until further notice.
- Feeder and breeder swine may otherwise enter Pennsylvania if a prior permit is obtained from the Agriculture Department, the swine are examined by an accredited veterinarian, accompanied by appropriate certificate, and move directly to the Pennsylvania farm destination.

Bee venom eases arthritis

BLACKSBURG, Va. - At their recent annual meeting in Blacksburg, Va., members of the Eastern Apicultural Society of North America elected a new president and learned of a breakthrough in the use of bee venom to ease the effects of arthritis and other rheumatic ills.

Elected president for the coming year was University of Delaware entomologist, Dr. Dale F. Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology. Another University entomologist, Dr. Charles E. Mason, was elected first vice president of the Apicultural organization, which includes members from both the eastern half of the United States and Canada.

Highlight of the recent meeting, according to Bray, was a talk by Lt. Col. James A. Vick of the U. S. Army, stationed at Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland. Vick reported on research findings that indicate that injections or dermal applications of bee venom on dogs and monkeys suffering from arthritis and other ailments of the joints apparently relieve the symptoms of such conditions. Use of the bee venom was found to increase the boy's production of cortisone and also to increase the power of the heartbeat in laboratory animals used in the study.

People who work with bees have long maintained that bee venom has a beneficial effect when applied to rheumatic problems, but until now the medical profession has been reluctant to accept this claim, dismissing it as an old-wive's tale.

Food policy discussed

BAILEY, Colo. - The National Farmers Union's Women's Food Policy Conference at the Farmers Union Education Center here, was held earlier this month with Myra Ruoss, secretary of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Union, in attendance.

The women discussed a broad range of subjects related to the development of a new national food policy. In addition, they engaged in a series of skill development activities in which they employed such methods as dramatizations and role playing. Skills stressed included ways to improve meetings and communication techniques.

The group included 110 women from eight states - North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Texas and Kansas.

Tony Dechant, national president of Farmers Union, told the women that the essential ingredient in a new national food policy must be programs to assure that American farmers "will be able to stay in business."

Dechant said U.S. farmers produce 50 per cent of all the grain marketed in the world, but we have no policy to assure ourselves that we will be able to continue to produce so abundantly."

The Farmers Union president criticized the policies of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

"Butz says his policy is one of 'plenty'," Dechant said. "Well, this year the chickens have come home to roost. Farm prices are badly depressed, but it won't cost Butz a dime. He will continue to draw his salary, while it will be costing farmers plenty."

Dechant charged that the Administration's farm policy is based "on the weather in Russia."

He said that if there is a lack of rainfall in the USSR, "Butz is happy because the U.S. has a place to peddle its grain. But if Soviet rainfall is adequate, as it has been, American farmers are left with a lot of grain on their hands and low prices."

Dechant stressed that the U.S. needs to adopt a new food policy that recognizes the needs of both farmers and consumers. "Stability in the marketplace is vital to both," he said.

COMPLETE SOIL TEST
IM-PRUV-ALL
SOILS AND CROPS

All soils on this earth contain sand, silt and clay which in themselves have no nutritive value for growing crops. However, they hold those nutrients that make crops grow. These nutrients, necessary to plant growth, include nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, sodium, sulfur, zinc, manganese, copper, boron, iron, chlorine, and others. To produce good yields as well as quality crops, these nutrients MUST be in proper balance and available to the growing plants. If anyone of these necessary nutrients is depleted or missing, it must be replaced and balanced to produce quality crops. No one can tell by looking! THE ONLY WAY to determine nutrient levels in a soil is by laboratory extraction and measurement.

A Complete Soil Test to Im-Pruv-All Soils and Crops reveals the availability and balance of all the above nutrients in the soil. Computerized recommendations are made for each specific crop at requested yield goals. Complete soil fertility and balance can be achieved and maintained year after year, crop after crop. Fertility dollars can be efficiently spent on ONLY those nutrients necessary at the levels required.

This soil test has been developed and successfully used over a 12-year period. Outstanding results have been achieved on such crops as corn, alfalfa, milo, oats, wheat, trudan, sudan, clover, grasses, sugar beets, cotton, vegetables, orchards, peanuts, potatoes, and many others when recommendations were followed. Thousands of satisfied customers have improved crop production and quality on millions of acres under this program.

These farmers, their bankers, their fertilizer and seed suppliers as well as the purchasers of their crops report the following obvious benefits in using this soil test for crop production.

1. Increased production.
2. Improved quality.
3. Builds complete soil fertility.
4. More efficient utilization of the fertilizer dollars.
5. Earlier and more uniform maturity.
6. Increased nutrient values.
7. Longer shelf life of fruits and vegetables.
8. Improved soil tilth and humus.
9. Improved plant vigor.
10. Maximum utilization of high priced land.

The Complete Soil Test to Im-Pruv-All Crops and Soils gives our customers the tools and knowledge to plan, build, and maintain a profitable soil fertility program.

Capital and management stressed

Farmers' efficiency noted

HERSHEY, Pa. American farmers are as much as 75 times more efficient than farmers in other parts of the world, Dr. Hiram Drache told the annual convention of PennAg Industries Association last week. Their 98th annual convention was held here at the Hershey Convention Center.

Drache is a professor of history at Concordia College in Moorehead, Minn., as well as a farmer with a 1400-acre beef feeding operation. Although there are many who disagree with his views, Drache is widely recognized as an agriculture but still operated by family units.

One reason the American farmer is so efficient is because he relies on outside professional help in making management decisions.

The more the farmer relies on people like you," he told the PennAg members, "the better job he's able to do."

Farm populations have declined drastically since the country was founded, Drache said. In 1790 it took the labor of 19 farm workers to provide enough food for themselves and one other person in town. By 1910 every farm worker was producing enough food for himself and seven other people.

By 1960, each farm worker was feeding 26 people. In 1970 the figure had risen to 54, and by the year 2000 Drache predicts that every farm worker will be feeding 200 people.

But if that prediction does come true, it will mean a tremendous change in the way farmers operate. Where once labor was the most important requirement in food production, capital and management have become more important. That fact will become even more pronounced in the years ahead, Drache feels.

I'd like to tell you the 5 M's of farming," he said, the five things a farmer needs to be successful today. They are, in increasing order of importance, mechanization, money, management, motivation and mother."

Mechanization cuts labor costs and increases the amount of work that can be done by an individual. I know of a college sophomore - a girl - who plows 320 acres a day with a four-wheel drive tractor.

"It takes money to buy that kind of equipment. It takes management to keep a highly capitalized farm operation going, and it takes an individual motivation to want to do the job.

"Most importantly, though, it takes 'mother', another way of saying farm wife. Without the help and encouragement of his wife, a farmer will have a tough time doing all the things that need to be done to make an operation successful.

"But if a husband-and-wife farming team make up their minds that they're going to do something, there's nothing in the world that can stop them.

CONTROL. A modern farmer adjusts the climate inside the cab of his air conditioned radio-equipped tractor in a California field. Equipment such as this can cost upwards of $20,000.

PURINA BIO-4 POULTRY CHOWS

THE NEW SCIENTIFIC FEEDING PROGRAM FOR EGG PRODUCERS AND PULLET GROWERS.

PURINA CHOWS

WHAT IS BIO-4

Bio-4 Poultry Chows are feeds which utilize newly developed values for four critical nutrient areas: No. 1 - Amino Acids, No. 2 - Energy, No. 3 - Minerals, No. 4 - Vitamins. New biological feed values were developed after seven years of research test feeding.

HOW TO FEED

BIO-4 SAVES FEED COSTS — YOU FEED ONLY WHAT YOUR BIRDS NEED.

FEED INTAKE lbs./100 hens/day	BIO-4 CHOW TO FEED
OVER 25.0	Bio-100
23.4 TO 25.0	Bio-107
21.7 TO 23.3	Bio-114
20.0 TO 21.6	Bio-121
UNDER 20.0	Bio-128

Starting with Bio-100, each Bio Chow contains 7% more fortification.

MORE PROFIT $$$

Bio-4 Poultry Chows mean more profit for you!! A key economic effect of Bio-4 Chow is an improvement in feed conversion. This improvement is a result of Bio-4's higher nutrient density. Based on Purina Research, you should see a decrease in feed intake of 0.1 lb. per dozen eggs. The value of this decrease for a 40,000 bird house exceeds $5000 per cycle.
